Searchers find discarded jacket, shirt

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Searchers found a newly-discarded shirt and jacket today in a sweep of a rugged area near here where a man thought to be the killer of three Girl Scouts was believed to be hiding.

Meanwhile, searchers expanded the 10-square mile perimeter of the sweep as fears mounted a man seen in the area Thursday might have slipped out during the night.

State police, including sharpshooters, along with other law enforcement officials, continued the search south of an area where a running man was spotted by a farmer Thursday afternoon.

Officials said the man could have been Gene Leroy Hart, a 33-year-old fugitive charged Thursday with thcee counts of murder in the slayings.

The hilly area is near Skunk Mountain, just three miles from the camp where three Girl Scouts were sexually molested and dragged from their tent June 13.

"If he gets into that area, there's no section lines for five miles," said Doug Littlefield, an area resident for 25 years. "You can't hardly block those woods...that a man can't get right past you just a couple of feet away."

More than 150 volunteers and a police aircraft were also involved in the search as helicopters and tracking dogs were kept at the ready.

The brown fatigue-type jacket and T-shirt were found hours after the search began at 6 a.m. Officials speculated the items could have been taken in burglaries reported in the area following the slayings, but that connection had not been made.

Lt. Kenneth Van Hoy, state police public information officer, said one of the tracking dogs being used in the search returned with wounds which appeared to have been inflicted by someone wielding a branch or small club. There was speculation the dog could have confronted the man being sought and been beaten.

The man spotted running across an open field Thursday was reportedly carrying two weapons, police said. Mayes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver said the weapons could have been a .20-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle taken from a farmhouse in the area a few days ago.

Searchers caught two glimpses of a running figure, but the search was called off at about 10 p.m.

Weaver told volunteers in a 6 a.m. briefing to form lines one to three miles in width, and be on the lookout for any fresh evidence of living sites.

"Don't only look for this, but watch those trees," Weaver said. "He will damn sure climb a tree and let you walk under him."

Weaver warned searchers that the man they were looking for could be armed and dangerous.

Mayes County Dist. Atty. Sid Wise emphasized to searchers that they leave any potential evidence for technicians to process.

About the same time the man was sighted Thursday, Wise was filing three charges of first-degree murder against Hart, 33, a convicted rapist and kidnaper who has been at large since he escaped from the county jail in 1973.

Hart was convicted of the rape of a Tulsa woman shortly before he broke out of the County jail at nearby Pryor in 1973. He has remained at large.

Tattered photographs of three women found near the death scene prtvided the break in the case after authorities linked them to Hart, who has pending sentences for rape, two counts of kidnaping and four counts of first-degree burglary.

Hart's name had surfaced earlier and the decision to issue a warrant came after it was reported he may have developed the photographs of the women.

Laetrile will soon receive human tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute, bowing to public pressure, will test the controversial substance Laetrile on cancer patients who have exhausted all other hope.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, the acting director of the cancer institute, said Thursday the fact that the experiments will be conducted does not "change our opinion that Laetrile is not effective" in the treatment of cancer.

Proponents say Laetrile is a cancer remedy. Its opponents say it has no medicinal value.

"We have reconsidered our position because of a lot of factors, and one of them is societal pressures," Newell told a House government operations subcommittee conducting hearings into the government's war against cancer.

Newell also said the tests are being undertaken because of the number of states that have legalized Laetrile or are considering it, in spite of the federal attitude toward the substance.

Laetrile, a derivative of apricot pits, has been legalized in 11 states but the Food and Drug Administration bans it for interstate sales on the grounds that it is useless in cancer treatment.

Newell said the Laetrile will be administered in cases where patients had been given all the best known medical treatment to no avail.

Dr. Saul Shepartz, a cancer institute scientist, said the tests would be conducted on "a couple of hundred" terminally ill cancer patients and that the program should begin in about three months.

The institute said results of the test would be known in about a year.

Newell said patients involved in the test will be given Laetrile in conjunction with other medicationand that no patients will receive only Laetrile.

Newell said one group will receive Laetrile along with the standard treatment and the other group of patients will be given the standard treatment and dummy pills or injections that they would think was Laetrile. He said patients would not know whether they were in the Laetrile group or in the group receiving dummy medication.

Stolen truck is recovered

A three-quarter ton four-wheel drive army truck stolen Monday or Tuesday from behind the Northeast Fire Station was recovered at 1 p.m. Thursday about two blocks from where it was taken.

The truck was found by Scott County Civil Defense Director Gleen Greene and volunteer fireman David Shain near the intersection of Dye and Lillian streets. It was parked on property owned by Glaus Sanitation.

The $3,700 army green truck is being loaned to the county civil defense unit under the federal surplus property program.

Sikeston woman injured

Ethel Allen, 66, of 205 Bowman St., escaped serious injury, this morning when the car she was driving was struck by a passing tractor- trailer truck, as she was attempting to turn left off of Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston. Driver of the truck, Kevin Carbiener, 22, of North Liberty, Ind., was cited for improper passing, according to the highway patrol. Here, Trooper Jerry Crismon, surveys the damage to the Allen car, as the Missouri Delta Community Hospital ambulance takes Mrs. Allen from the scene. (Daily standard photo)

Court rules some state aid to parochial schools is okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may spend tax dollars to provide parochial school pupils with books and certain educational services but cannot finance field trips or lend parochial schools equipment such as maps and audio-visual aids, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In four separate opinions on a case from Ohio, the court said some forms of state aid to pupils in parochial schools do not violate the Constitution's requirement for separtion of church and state.

The decision appeared to be a partial victory for a group of Ohio taxpayers who had challenged the Ohio law as an unconstitutional establishment of religion and a partial victory for state officials who insisted the law was valid.

Legislation passed by the Ohio Legislature in 1975 "lends" up to $88 million worth of materials and services over the next two years to students in private schools, most of them run by religious organizations.

The decision seems to give states a limited way to circumvent the Supreme Court's past decisions outlawying the use of taxpayer dollars for most forms of aid to private schools.

Specifically, the court approved these forms of state aid to parochial students:

—Diagnostic speech and hearing services conducted on parochial school grounds.

—Therapeutic, guidance and remedial services at sites lacking the "pervasively sectarian atmosphere of the church-related schools."

The court would not allow, however, these forms of aid:

—The loan of equipment to students, an action the court said "inescapably had the primary effect of providing a direct and substantial advancement of the sectarian enterprise."

Ohio officials had hoped to get around a previous Supreme Court ruling that banned states from giving educational equipment to parochial schools or their students by "loaning" it. The court said that would not be allowed because the equipment could be used for religious purposes.

—Money or transportation aid for field trips, because the parochial schools and not their students would control the timing and frequency of such trips. This would be, the court said, "an impermissable direct aid to sectarian education."

Listing their separate reasons in 65 pages of opinions, the nine justices split five different ways on the constitutionality of such aid.

A majority of six justices ruled that textbook loans and academic testing are allowed by the Constitution. Justices William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

The court voted 8-1, with only Brennan opposed, that aid for diagnostic testing is allowed, and split 7-2, with Brennan and Marshall dissenting, in deciding that aid for therapy off parochial school grounds is permissible.

Another 6-3 split occurred when the justices voted that the lending of equipment such as maps and charts is unconstitutional. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented.

On field trips, Powell joined those three members of the court in dissent. A five-member majority ruled that aid for field trips was unconstitutional also.

Opponents of the Ohio law had argued that it attempts to avoid the restrictions of past court rulings "via a few simple strategems which produce slight technical differences in the wording of a law but little meaningful change from the results already prohibited."

Ohio Atty. Gen. William J. Brown defended the law, arguing that it did not cause excessive governmental entanglement with religion and had the secular, non-religious purpose of helping schoolchildren.

In 1975, in a Pennsylvania case, the Supreme Court struck down a state law letting tax monies be spent for speech and hearing therapy provided parochial students on the grounds of their schools.

Today's decision means that such aid can be made available by the state if the therapists meet and work with the children off school grounds in a "nonsecular" atmosphere.

Tires taken from car lot

Five truck tires were taken from four trucks parked on the new car lot of Semo Motor Co., 417 N. Main St., sometime Wednesday night, according to the Public Safety Department.

The tires, valued at $850, included four spares. One tire was taken from the rear of a truck.

The theft is believed to have occurred Wednesday night, but was reported Thursday.

JEFFERSON CITY — State legislators refused to accept responsibility for the administration of the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act, by failing to enact Missouri's Safe Drinking Water Act, SB-285.

Environmental Protection Agency spokeswoman Darby Collins said this failure to enact the legislation forces the federal government to administer the program, which could mean more stringent requirements than state measures would have had.

More than 1,300 community water supplies and an undetermined number of noncommunity water supplies serving hotels, motels, service stations and other public facilities, will come under the requirements of the act.

The Act provides for monitoring of bacteriological quality, inorganic chemicals, organic chemicals, radiological quality and certain physical criteria and other considerations.

Violations of these quality standards require notice to the public that explains when the standard was violated, the public health significance of the violations and what corrective measures will be taken. The act also provides for both civil and criminal penalties if the quality requirements and procedures defined within the act are not met.

EPA will open a water supply office in Jefferson City for purpose of implementation of the Safe Drinking Water Act. Earl V. Porter has been named project officer to head the field office. He is a registered professional engineer and a native Missourian. Porter graduated from the University of Missouri at Rolla and served as district engineer for the Missouri Division of Health at Macon before joining the Federal government's Public Health Service. He has served the past two years in the engineering branch of the EPA's Water Division in Kansas City.

Minor injuries in accident

Ethel Allen, 66, of 205 Bowman St. received minor injuries in a car-truck accident at 8:15 a.m. today on Highway 60 three miles west of town.

The highway patrol reported the accident occurred as the westbound Allen car was making a left turn and was struck by the tractor-trailer truck driven west by Kevin Keith Carbiener, 22, of North Liberty, Ind., who was attempting to pass the Allen car.

The patrol said the woman was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Carbiener was arrested for improper passing.

New law has impact on AFDC program

A bill passed by the General Assembly and signed into law by the governor has impact on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, according to Robert F. Widener, county director of Scott County Division of Family Services.

The bill which carries an emergency clause to become effective on July 1, places the state of Missouri in conformity with federal requirements for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The new law requires the establishment of a single and separate agency within the Division of Family Services to identify and locate absent parents and to enforce child support obligations.

The intent is to place the obligation of supporting children on the parents rather than the taxpayer, Widener said. The division will enter into cooperative agreements with counties to enforce and collect child support. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost of this service and, in addition, counties will receive an incentive payment for providing the service. It is required that the service of the agency by available to families not receiving AFDC as well as those receiving AFDC.

Also included in the new law is a major change in the method of payment for families eligible for AFDC. Current law stipulates a maximum grant system by family size. The new provisions will change this to a percentage of need payment plan. The division wilp take the highest per cent of the need standard, as determined by AFDC appropriations, subtract the countable income, and the balance is the amount of grant. Implementation of the new payment method of 65 per cent of need in Scott County will result in closing approximately 97 Aid to Families with Dependent Children cases, decreasing abou abot about 333 AFDC grants and increasing approximately 517 AFDC grants.

Widener said, "The maximum grant system helps the family with the most income--the percentage of need system helps the family with the least income. We believe the percentage of need payment plan is the most equitable for AFDC families." All payments wilp change effective in July and all persons presently receiving AFDC will be notified by letter of the effect of the new law.

After the percentage of need system is implemented, it will be necessary to review all food stamp cases in which there are persons receiving AFDC. Those persons who AFDC payments are decreased or closed, may be eligible for food stamps at a lower purchase requirement. Those families in which the AFDC payment is increased, may have to pay a slightly higher amount for their food stamps. These families will also be notified by letter and this change will be effective Aug. 1.

If anyone has questions or believes the AFDC payment or the food stamp purchase requirement is incorrect, he or she may contact the county Division of Family Services, Widener said.

UTILITY RATES AND RATIOS

High electric utility rates may often be a case of too many chiefs and not enough Indians.

The fewer the number of commissioners on a public utilities commission and the larger its staff, the more effective the commission is in regulating the cost of electricity to consumers, says a Cleveland State University political scientist.

Assistant professor Thomas M. Pelsoci bases that conclusion on a statistical study of 49 state regulatory agencies.

While factors such as the cost of fuel and labor have a great influence on rates in any given area, he found that "the best way to reduce electricity rates, at least from my study, is to reduce the number of commissioners and add staff."

A sizable staff is needed to check complicated accounts and records on which rates are based, he says. But the more commissioners there are, "the more political careers are involved. They tend to displace staff recommendations and make decisions based on other considerations."

Pelsoci's study also disputes the notion that the popular election of utilities commissioners leads to lower rates. On the contrary, he found that those states with elected commissioners have higher rates than those with appointed commissioners.

The reason, he theorizes, is that elected commissioners are more responsive to the utility industries than the public because of campaign contributions from the industries.

RPO CANCELLED

Railroad buffs can mark down the end of another era. The last remaining Railway Post Office (RPO) will make its final run between New York and Washington, D.C., on June 30.

The New York - Washington RPO, involving two four-car trains on which mail is sorted, has been the Post Service's solitary Railway Post Office since 1972. It began operating on October 15, 1864, five months after the RPO system was inaugurated between Chicago and Clinton, Iowa.

At one time, shortly after World War II, there were 1,500 RPOs crisscrossing the country, with 30,000 men working in more than 4,000 individual RPO cars.

The decline of the RPOs began in the late 1930s, but was delayed when railroad traffic increased during the war. The really sharp decline began in the 1950s, when the railroads began discontinuing passenger service.

Mail will continue to be transported between Washington and New York by rail, as well as by truck and plane, but all sorting and processing will take place in originating and destination post offices.

For the Good Of The Neighborhoods

As a good cause, preserving neighborhoods has come to rank right up there with protecting families, conserving energy and promoting grassroots government. Thus when Congress recently passed a study-commission law called the "National Neighborhood Policy Act," nobody quarreled with the premise that "existing city neighborhoods are a national resource to be conserved and revitalized wherever possible."

That language is worth some attention, though. To start with, it reflects a major change in urban politics and policies, away from massive public redevelopment and the concentration of private resources in rich and growing areas. Instead, the "neighborhoods" approach emphasizes non-disruption, social stability, attention to the working class and grass-roots organization.

Beyond that, however, key terms are largely undefined. What is a "neighborhood"? How can a cohesive community-not just a place-be "conserved" and "revitalized"? What's "possible"? The answers are likely to differ in Washington, Cincinnati and Baltimore. That's not a defect. On the contrary, it is a major reason the "neighborhoods movement" has come to encompass so much.

The localism and diversity in all of this are, ironically, the elements most endangered by success. Now there is to be a "national neighborhoods policy." And with that, if things follow the normal course, will come federal funds and definitions and the rest, gradually smothering the creativity and citizens' initiatives on which the whole idea was founded.

Fortunately, many "neighborhooods" advocates see the danger. They remember all too well what happened to community action and how the modelcities program was suffocated by its own intricacy. They seem to recognize, too, that no national agency can prescribe specific programs for every neighborhood in the land.

Thus the new law sets up a study commission, composed primarily of local activists, to spend one year and $1,000.000 studying the whole field and shaping recommendations, primarily on financing and taxing policies for existing residential areas. Some good ideas may come out of this. More important, it gives everybody some time to think about how, or indeed whether, federal programs can foster neighborhood action without trampling the grass-roots.

IT SHOULD BE NATIONWIDE

Columbia is the first town or city in Missouri to approve a city law that requires a 5-cent deposit on all non-returnable (throwaway) bottles, cans or other containers sold in Columbia. Its people did so in the hope that it would cut down on littering its streets and yard.

Oregon has tried a similar law except that it prohibits the sale of non-returnables in the entire state. It is working there, it would work anywhere. It has cut down on costs of picking up the litter. It has resulted in the saving and recycling and re-use of tons of vital materials of which the world is running short. It has helped keep Oregon clean and beautiful.

Prohibition of non-returnable bottles and cans should be nation-wide. Labor unions are against it, saying it will result in the loss of many jobs in plants that manufacture non-returnable containers. But the facts are that all these jobs would be more than replaced by jobs in manufacturing more returnable containers and in plants that do the recycling.

Our nation, and in many cases, the world, is running out of many basic materials. Here is one way to save them and at the same time save money for the taxpayers, and help to keep America beautiful.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

JURIES CAN DECIDE OBSCENITY

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The U.S. Supreme Court has finally come around to the concusion reached by the late Sen. Everett Dirksen and recommended in the last article he wrote before he died, namely, that the decision as to what is and what is not obscene should be made by juries rather than by judges.

In upholding the conviction of an Iowa smut peddler, Justice Harry Blackman stated the court's position like this: "Contemporary community standards must be applied by juries in accordance with their own understanding of the tolerance of the average person in their community."

The state law, according to the court in a May decision, is a factor to be brought to the jury's attention, but it is not conclusive.

Recently, the Supreme Court reaffirmed this policy by upholding an Illinois obscenity law which had been challenged as being unconstitutionally vague. Hereafter, a pornographer cannot escape prosecution just because he is more imaginative than the lawmakers in specifically describing sexual acts.

At least since the landmark Roth decision of 1957, it has been the law of our land that obscenity is not protected by the First Amendment and that the test of obscenity is whether, to the average person applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interests.

The more elusive question, however, remained: What are contemporary community standards?

In the "Fanny Hill" case of 1966, the court ruled that a book cannot be proscribed unless it is "utterly" without redeeming social value. Since under this rule even a modicum of social value would suffice, the court would use a microscope to find some modicum and then substitute the court's opinion for the jury finding. When prostitute Fanny Hill got married in the last few pages, that provided the "social value" to excuse a whole book of pornography.

While Justice Potter Stewart once said that he knows obscenity when he sees it, the other justices did not find obscenity so easy to define.

Fanny Hill ushered in a seven-year period during which the Supreme Court was constantly second-guessing juries as to whether or not material was obscene.

Finally in the 1973 Miller case, Chief Justice Warren Burger let down the anchor of stability by enunciating a three-point test for obscenity based on community standards: (1) whether the average person would find that the work, taken as a whole, appeals to the prurient interest, (2) whether the work depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual conduct specifically defined by state law, and (3) whether the work, taken as a whole, lacks serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

Specifically opting for community rather than national standards, Justice Burger ruled: "It is neither realistic nor constitutionally sound to read the First Amendment as requiring that the people of Maine or Mississippi accept public depiction of conduct found tolerable in Las Vegas or New York City." The mere fact that juries may reach different conclusions does not mean that constitutional rights are abridged.

Even so, the Miller case did not go all the way toward the acceptance of juries as the final arbiter of community standards. The following year, in Jenkins v. Georgia, the court again substituted its judgment forthat of the jury's.

The purpose of the legislation proposed by Sen. Dirksen in his November 1969 Reader's Digest article was to return to juries their right to make the final determination as to whether a book, magazine or movie is obscene. It appears that the latest two obscenity decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court have done precisely that.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Think Tank Fish:

Auto Union Chiefs begin planning final drive for '79 Four-Day Week Contract

WASHINGTON— Out of the think tank into which the veteran "new" leaders of the United Auto Workers (UAW) will submerge themselves for a week late in August, they hope to emerge with some new working life styles.

He'll "isolate" the union's international executive board that week in Toronto, Canada. They'll ask themselves in long day sessions – where do we go from here, what new social paths are there to slash through, what hasn't the labor movement yet sought and won. This may sound corny. For many others maybe. But not for the latter-day Reutherites who long ago invented the Cost of Living Adjustment (uncapped COLA) for example – which today is labor's biggest money winner.

They're certain to take the new Fraser administration's first long step towards an actual "four day" work week.

This auto union never has been better organized, more skillfully managed or more heavily financially equipped to drive in any socio-economic direction it desires. This leadership smashed onto the industrial front in the '30s. They were young, hard-driving, plant-seizing, marching, squad-flying men. Today, in their 60s, they know that by union mandate they must walk off stage during the beginning of the '80s. But they don't plan to go quietly. Less smashingly. But not quietly.

Their 60-year-old president, Doug Fraser, who must retire at 65, has set the mood by targeting in on the four-day work week. Bargaining for that during the 1979 contract negotiations with the Big Three auto manufacturers will be "inevitable," he told his colleagues. If the union wins, as it always has on social objectives as well as wages, this will affect some 850,000 auto and agricultural implement workers.

The shorter work week will flash fire from auto to steel and other mass industries in a few years. It always has.

So 1979 will be the time frame for the industrial Armageddon. The union wants the equivalent of four days' work for five days' pay– in some fashion. For starters, the days needn't be in sequence. And they may include holidays at premium pay.

But in the end the union officials say, the work week will be four days long. I guess the slogan will be -- towards a new America. Sort of a mod American version of European Social Democracy for which some labor chiefs are organizing these days. Quietly, philosophically and intellectually -- but organizing none the less for some time-distant British brand of "Democratic Socialism."

But this leapfrogs the immediate story. Vital for a long view of 1979 is industry's distinct distaste for the four-day work week. For a score of technocratic and philosophic reasons.

So labor and management, now arguing mostly about Doug Fraser's support of air bags and automatic seat belts for new cars, really will stare at each other in computerized array like olden armored Scottish and English armies about to do battle.

And the UAW comes well equipped for the struggle at contract renegotiation time in September 1979. It will have some $350 million in its "Strike Insurance Fund." Perhaps more if there aren't intervening walkouts which now don't even flyspeck the horizon.

At this moment the UAW has a net worth of over $250 million. As of March 1, the union's general funds were $75.7 million. And spouting. This is the operating money of the union "from which the bulk of the cost of funning the UAW is allocated," according to its own records.

There are few other clues to Doug Fraser's think-tank agenda. These past few weeks he's been doing what comes natural when a star is born. He has been on the national TV tube on Sunday morning. He has sat with editorial boards of some newspapers to talk in prescient terms of where the modern world is going -- and why he believes the mentally alert, but not so physically well George Meany (83 years old on Aug. 16) should retire.

He has declared himself on car emissions and talked gas guzzling with President Carter. He believes that the public should have the option of purchaisng a car in which the seat belt automatically clamps down on a passenger when the auto door shuts. He has dropped in on the AFL-CIO's famed 16th Street national labor center (as it's now being called) to discuss merging with the federation.

Like all bright union chiefs, he consults with other executive cadres first before sounding off publicly.

Fraser is lobbying across the land among his regional and local UAW units urging them to vote for national – the key word -- affiliation with the AFL-CIO. Into such a coalition he can lead more than 1.5 million members during the mother federation's biennial convention on Dec. 8 in Los Angeles. The UAW is second in size only to the Teamsters.

And already he can influence some of the biggest of AFL-CIO mass unions and some of the smallest. Such as Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers to which the UAW has contributed $1.1 million in the past three years. And is still contributing weekly.

So as the think tankers meditate late in August so should the vast forces of the American labor movement. New life styles, or at the very least new work-day fashions, may be fished out of those skull sessions. Watch it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sen. Eastland Is Backing A Questionalble Protege

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- As Senate Judiciary Chairman, owlish, old Jim Eastland has been an uncompromising spokesman for law and order. He would be expected, therefore, to demand the prosecution of an alleged lawbreaker, not to recommend him for high office.

Yet the 72-year-old curmudgeon from Mississippi has urged the White House to consider Kenneth Dupuy for a top energy post. It should be no secret, since we reported it in more than 900 newspapers last September, that Dupuy is under investigation for alleged bribery, sexual impropriety and misuse of federal funds.

The investigation forced Dupuy to resign as director of the Federal Energy Administration's regional office in Atlanta. The Justice Dept., meanwhile, has reviewed the case and has sent it back to the FEA for further investigation. FEA sources tell us it has been assigned "top priority."

Yet the White House sent Dupuy to the FEA for an interview. This is normally a clear signal of White House support. It now looks as if he won't get an appointment. But the White House, apparently, tried to install him as one of the bosses of the agency that is investigating him.

Of course, the White House was under pressure from Eastland to restore Dupuy to power. The round-faced, close-mouthed Mississippi senator doesn't often raise his voice. But when he removes the dead cigar butt from his mouth and offers his views, the high muckamucks in Washington usually listen. For he has the power to kill laws, stall appointments and bog down the Senate.

A spokesman for Eastland told our associate, Marc Smolonsky, that Dupuy "did a good job" running the Atlanta office. Federal investigators, however, disagree. As we reported last September, Dupuy is under investigation for allegedly giving extra fuel allocations to gasoline distributors in return for gratuities.

Investigators established that Dupuy frequently used the apartment of William Corey, a gasoline and diesel fuel distributor, for trysts with a girl friend. At about the same time, Corey's firm, U.S. Transport, Inc., had its gas and diesel fuel allocations raised by Dupuy's office. Some of the allocations, according to sources close to the case, were awarded to gas stations and truck stops that existed only on paper.

This isn't the first time Dupuy has been in trouble. In 1975, he was reprimanded for accepting transportation from an oil company to attend its Florida convention, where he stayed two days at the firm's expense.

He was also accused of misusing federal funds. He and his secretary often junketed together outside his region. A number of times he traveled to his Mexia, Tex., ranch allegedly at government expense.

We have been unable to locate Dupuy. But his attorney previously said there was "not anything to" the bribe allegations. The lawyer admitted his client had used Corey's apartment but insisted no favors had been given Corey in return.

Dupuy was not regional administrator, the attorney claimed, when the higher fuel allocations were awarded Corey. He added that the travel abuse charges against Dupuy were "piddly junk," and that he was cleared of them.

Florida Sequel: More than a year ago, we sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to Florida to investigate the working conditions of the migrant stoop laborers. Posing as a young drifter, he was recruited out of a flophouse in Immokolee to work on the nearby corporate farm of A. Duda and Sons.

He hunched over rows of tomatoes with the other workers, picking them for a penny a pound. The days were long, the sun hot, the fields infested with snakes. Pesticides on the tomato vines caused some workers to break out with painful rashes.

The workers lived in bat tered trailers, which were subdivided into tiny compartments. Bernton shared a cubicle, streaked with grime and stinking of urine, with another worker. They slept on filthy mattresses. The camp was located on a barren, dusty, wind-whipped stretch of sand.

At the end of each week, the workers were paid barely enough to cover the cost of their overpriced meals and the wine they gulped down at the end of the day to dull their aches and pains. Some workers actually wound up owing their crewleader more than they had earned in the fields.

Since we published these reports, much has happened. The labor camp has been replaced by a new, $500,000 facility with modern trailers on a grassy site. A day care center has been added for the workers' children.

The Labor Dept., confirming our account, found that the Duda camp mess halls were overcharging the impoverished workers for their meals. The corporate farm may now be forced to refund the huge overcharges.

The crewleader, who enforced his authority with a vicious dog, was fired. The Labor Dept. is after him for alleged federal violations.

Finally, a wave of discontent swept through the Immokolee area, and some of the migrant workers organized a strike against the big growers. But the strike was broken by a brutal frost, which destroyed the winter vegetable crop. With no work to strike against, the migrants were forced to go on the public dole.

Today's news in brief

Judge blocks Tris ban

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A federal judge has blocked the nationwide ban on Tris, the flame-retardant and possible cancer-causing chemical used primarily in children's sleepwear.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Chapman on Thursday nullified the Federal Consumer Products Safety Commission's ban, saying the commission acted illegally in implementing the ban because it failed to follow procedural safeguards enacted by Congress.

He also said the agency's data on Tris was "unverified, uninterpreted and uncertain."

His 36-page ruling prevents the commission from enforcing the ban until proper procedure is followed.

There was no immediate comment from the commission on the judge's ruling.

On April 8 the commission banned the use of Tris and ordered manufacturers of Tristreated fabrics to repurchase their products to get them off the market. The commission said Tris may cause cancer, based on its interpretation of data from the National Cancer Institute.

Tonry adopts 'Rocky' role

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Congressman Richard Tonry, who resigned his U.S. House seat in an election fraud scandal, pictures himself as a "Rocky" type figure in his fight to win a Democratic primary and regain his post. Tonry, who uses as his campaign theme song music from the prizefighter movie "Rocky," says, "The more they push me, the madder I get," he says. "The madder I get, the more I fight. And the more I fight, the more I win."

Soviet computer sale refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is refusing to let the Control Data Corp. sell a $13 million computer system to the Soviet Union, despite the Russians' contention that its only use would be forecasting the weather. The administration said the deal was prohibited because the Cyber 76 computer was so elaborate that the Soviets could have used it for warfare.

Foreign aid reversal sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House pased a $6.7 billion foreign aid appropriations bill, banning U.S. aid or trade with Cuba and blocking aid to six other nations. Now President Carter and Democratic leaders are looking to the Senate to overturn the measure. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell says the bill would "damage the ability of this country to pursue our national interests by peaceful means," but did not say whether Carter would veto it if it remained in its present form.

IRS says Agnew owes on taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says Spiro T. Agnew failed to report almost $27,000 in income in 1973, the year he resigned as vice president of the United States and pleaded no contest to a felony count of income tax evasion. The IRS is asking Agnew to pay $13,966 in back taxes and penalties on the alleged ureported income.

Begin vows to hold West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin says his new Israeli government will never give up all of the West Bank or allow a Palestinian state to be formed there and in the Gaza Strip. To do so would put "every city and home in Israel" in Arab artillery sights, Begin told the World Zionist Congress Thursday.

New hunger strike begins

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Eight Chileans began a hunger strike at the Geneva headquarters of the International Red Cross Thursday as 26 Chileans ended a 10-day fast at a United Nations office in Santiago and five American sympathizers ended a six-day sit-in at a U.N. office in Washington. The Geneva demonstrators are demanding a U.N. investigation into the whereabouts of 2,500 persons they claim have disappeared since a military junta overthrew Chile's Marxist government in 1973.

Skateboards boon for doctors

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The skateboarding fad has made some people a lot of money, but those getting the biggest break may be doctors.

Dr. Kip Parsons, an orthopedist at Childrens Mercy Hospital, says between 30 and 40 young skateboarders have been treated for broken bones at the hospital this summer. Last year, there were six.

"Statistically that's a significant number when taking other forms of childhood play into consideration," Parsons said.

The doctor said the accidents have been divided equally between boys and girls, adding that the most common type of break is the wrist or forearm.

"Skateboards have taken their fair toll so far this summer," he said.

The worst may yet be to come, however.

Thousands of Kansas City students are still in school because of spring teachers' strike. They will be out of the classrooms — and on the sidewalks — next month.

34 telecopiers authorized

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Each member of the Missouri Senate has been authorized to purchase a telecopier machine under a plan that could cost the state more than $50,000.

But Ron Kirchoff, the Senate administrator, said only three senators asked for the machines used to transit written information by telephone. The machines cost about $1,500 each.

Authority for the senators to purchase a telecopier if they wanted was given by the Senate Accounts Committee in the final days of the recent legislative session.

Sen. Paul Bradshaw, RSpringfield, had initially asked the panel, which controls Senate expenditures, for authority to purchase a telecopier for himself. The committee gave its approval and extended the option to the other 33 Senate members.

According to Kirchoff, Republican Sens. Joe Frappier of St. Charles and George Murray of Creve Coeur are the other two lawmakers asking for the machines. Kirchoff said a fourth machine has also been ordered for the Senate's central administration.

WASHINGTON (AP) — What well-known politician claims he took a $600 income tax exemption for toothpaste?

None other than President Carter, who made his taxes and famous toothy grin the butt of his own jokes Thursday night at a New York fundraising dinner for Democrats.

The question of taxes takes on a more serious tone today, when the White House releases the President's twice-delayed 1976 income tax returns.

Carter received a 60-day extension beyond the April 15 income tax filing deadline earlier this year. When the 60 days expired, he received a second extension from the Internal Revenue Service.

The Carters paid $26,000 in estimated taxes during 1976. One of the questions delaying the filing reportedly dealt with whether royalties from Carter's book, "Why Not the Best?" should be treated as income in 1976 or 1977.

The answer to that question could determine whether the President receives a refund or owes more money.

CIRCUIT COURT

BLOOMFIELD — Walter Dewitt Burns, charged with capital murder, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder in Stoddard County Circuit Court last week before Judge Flake McHaney.

The charge stems from the shooting death of Jackie Long on Feb. 9, 1977 in Dunklin County and is a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Burns was sentenced to custody of state departmnt of corrections for 25 yars.

Also last week in the Dunklin County Circuit Court, Burns pleaded guilty to a charge of assault on C. R. Mayberry on April 24, 1976.

McHaney sentenced burns to 10 years in custody of the State Department of Corrections, to run concurrently with the first sentence.

Apples Apples

In late April and early May a large, mature apple tree will produce between 50,000 and 100,000 blossoms, in clusters of five or six. If all the blossoms were to set fruit, the tree would produce as many as 800 bushels of small apples. Usually a mere 2 to 5 per cent of the apple blossoms set fruit that develops into maturity, yielding 15 to 30 bushels of apples.

Attempt to raise gas tax seeks to 'educate' voters

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - The chairman of the petition campaign to raise Missouri's gasoline tax three cents a gallon says his group feels if the state's voters can be "educated" they will support the need for a gas tax increase.

But one critic of the proposal has labeled it "extremist" and said the plan probably would fare no better than President Carter's stand-by fuel tax plan.

Burleigh Arnold, a Jefferson City businessman, is chairman of the statewide petition drive to raise Missouri's present 7-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax to 10 cents. The initiative also would change the formula for allocating money from the gas tax to give counties 15 per cent of all motor fuel tax funds, instead of the current 5 per cent share.

The petition effort is being spearheaded by the Missouri Transportation and Development Council and is supported by the highway constuction lobby. If passed, it would generate more road repair and construction.

Arnold concedes a gasoline tax increase probably is not popular with voters, but he said if Missourians could be "educated" about the need for added money to improve the state's road system, they would vote for the tax hike.

"We are optimistic, despite all the controversy over the gasoline tax increases," Arnold said.

However, John Hahn, executive director of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association which opposes the initiative, said he was confident voters would rejct the proposal.

"I think the people made it clear what they think of gasoline tax increases when Congress was considering the Carter gasoline tax increase," Hahn said.

He also pointed out that the Oil Jobbers Association has supported a 1 cent increase in the tax, but said the council's plan goes too far.

Hahn attacked the initiated proposal as too broad because it would raise the gas tax 3 cents and at same time change the allocation formula.

"We're opposed to it because it represents a 43 per cent increase ... and it represents a reduction in the state Highway Commission's money," Hahn said.

Presently, 89 per cent of the motor fuel tax money goes to the state, 15 per cent goes to the cities and 5 per cent to the counties The council's plan would change the formula so 70 per cent would go to the state with the remaining 30 per cent split evenly between THe cities

"It's an extremist proposal," Hahn said. "I can't imagine the public going for such a thing."

Arnold said so far there had been no major organized resistance to the council's petition effort.

"I think we're going to finish the gathering of the signatures in July," Arnold said, adding that the council would not have been able to collect the signatures so quickly if there was widespread resistance to the petition drive.

Arnold earlier had predicted the necessary signatures would be obtained by July 1. But John Ashford, who runs the actual petition drive operation, said organizational problems of mounting the drive were greater than first anticipated. Still, Ashford said the problems were organizational rather than because of any major resistance to the plan.

He said the council had gathered "more than 100,000 signatures"

About 110,000 signatures are required to get the measure on the ballot, although Ashford said his group planned to gather about 150,000 to make sure the petitions passed the validation process.

Arnold and Ashford said after the necessary signatures were obtained, the council would then have to convince voters of the need for the tax increase. Arnold said the state and county highway departments needed the additional $85 million the proposed amendment would raise to upgrade deteriorating dridges and roads throughout the state.

Hahn, however, said if voters realized the size of the tax hike, they would turn down the initiative.

"In some campaigns they are able to cloud the tax increase part of it," Hahn noted.

Ashford said if the petition effort was successful the initiave could be on the 1978 general election ballot, but the council hoped to get Gov. Joseph Teasdale to call a special election on it earlier.

Supporters of the plan feel their best chance for passage would be in a special election this fall, rather than in the 1978 election, where the issue could be politicized by the canadiates.

"Gov. Teasdale has said if we get the signatures he will consider calling a special election," Ashford said. "And thre is no question we will get the signatures."

The governor's press aide, Dale Amick, said Teasdale "has made no commitment on this to anybody."

Teasdale has said he would oppose any incrrase in taxes for individuals and the governor was against a similar proposal to raise the gas taxes, which were unsuccessful in the 1977 legislature.

Most Arkansas jails may not meet standards

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Most Arkansas jails probably will not meet new minimum standards when they take effect Aug. 1, according to Dean Rowell, administrator of the state Criminal Detention Facilities Board.

Rowell said, however, that the board would not take cities and counties to court to force compliance, as long as local officials were making a conscientious effort to meet the standards.

He spoke in Little Rock at a conference for municipal officials sponsored by the Arkansas Municipal League.

The Board will begin formal inspections of jails in August, and all of the state's 155 jails are to be inspected before August 1978. If local officials do not begin correcting violations within six months, the board can file a petition in circuit court asking that the jail be closed.

The standards establish health, safety and structural requirements for jails and require that a matron be on duty at jails any time there are female prisoners in custody.

Employment office to lease building

DEXTER -- The Missouri Division of Employment Security has agreed to lease a building here for the establishment of an office, but it will probably be in late July or August 1 before the transaction can be completed and the new office start operating.

The state employment office is entering into a lease agreement with Gary Dowdy, owner of the building on Sassafras Street, just south of Stoddard, which is now occupied by the district office of the Division of Family Services.

The family services office will be moved to new quarters in Dexter, on which bids are to be opened in Jefferson City Wednesday.

Once the family services office has moved to its new quarters, then the employment office can be established in the Dowdy Building.

State Rep. Gary Smith said he had been informed by state officials that the Division of Employment Security has accepted the lease agreement with Dowdy for the building. It is dated July 1, but it is expected to be late in the month, or perhaps August 1, before the deed can be completed, Smith estimated.

New round of postal hikes coming July 6

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing newspapers, books, magazines and other second, third and fourth class items is increasing July 6, the Postal Service announced Wednesday.

The hike is the sixth in a series of annual increases scheduled when the service became a semi-independent agency.

First class letters are not affected.

Some examples of the new rates include:

—Second class rates for newspapers increase by varying amounts depending on whether they are entered by weight or by copy and according to distance. The per-piece charge outside a newspaper's home county, for example, increases from 0.8 cents to 1.1 cents. Within the county, the increase would be from 0.6 to 0.7 cents. Per-pound rates range from an increase to 6.7 cents from 6.0 cents in zones 1 and 2 to an increase to 13.5 cents from 12.5 cents in zone 8.

—The cost of mailing a book or record will increase from 25 to 30 cents for the first pound and from 10 to 11 cents for each additional pound up to seven pounds. Each pound over seven pounds will continue to cost 8 cents to mail.

—The typical weekly news magazine will now cost 6.80 cents to mail, up from 5.57 cents.

Missionary shares his experiences in Rhodesia

Richard Smith

Richard Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Linn Smith, 188 Tanner, returned recently after two years in Rhodesia while participating as a missionary journeyman for the Southern Baptist Church.

The two-year program is for students who finish college and are not 26 years old. The purpose is to build support for our missionaries and to also help those in the program to increase their spiritual needs. The program will also help gain local churches support of the missionaries and their families.

Smith is a graduate of the University of Missouri at Rolla where he received his degree in civil engineering. He first learned of the program while attending Urbana '73 at the University of Illinois. It was there that he learned of the details of the program and returned to talk to a friend at his church in Rolla to get reassurance that this was what he wanted.

He entered the program in June of 1975 and after six weeks of training in Raleigh, N.C., he prepared to depart for Angola. It was during this time, Smith recalled, that Angola was becoming very heated with terrorists and so the missionaries were pulled from Angola. Smith was then sent to Johanasburg, South Africa.

In February of 1976, he was transferred to Rhodesia, to the small village of Sanyati and remained there until his return to the states. While in Sanyati he taught missionary children in five different grades. Although his degree was not in education, his mother is a first grade teacher in the Sikeston schools and so he acquired some of her techniques.

Smith feels that all the missionaries are "cream of the crop", top-knotch people. They really are the most dedicated people that he came to know and enjoyed being with.

The school system in Rhodesia for the missionaries' children consisted of seven elementary grades and four "forms" in high school. According to Smith only ten percent of the village children get to high school.

Smith taught mostly fourth and fifth grades and used the British teaching packet to aid him and also borrowed American stories to tell for American history class. He asked his classes to memorize the 50 states and capitals, the Gettysburg Address and they observed all holidays.

Classes there would run from the end of January to mid April then break for three months and start again.

While in Sanyati, they filmed a movie to be used in the churches called "A Dream Come True." The film is the story of a young village boy's dream of going to school like his brothers and becoming a doctor.

Sanyati is 56 miles from the nearest town so to get mail and groceries, the village would send a truck in on Tuesday and Friday. "If you forgot to order bread then, you were just out of luck," Smith recalled. The truck would leave about 6 or 7 a.m. and would return around 3 or 4 p.m.

Not only did Smith teach school, but he was also responsible for helping to establish a church or similar preaching point with some of the villagers. Fearing that he would have a problem communicating with the villagers, when forming the preaching point, Smith soon learned that they too knew the English language and were anxious to be taught in such.

When asked if after pursuing his career in engineering would he return to a country as a missioniary, Smith replied that he feels it is important to share his faith. "My heart is in going back".

The one thing Smith says about being a journeyman or a missionary is that the job isn't all joys there are some heartaches, too.

He said that his parents were both happy and excited about his experience, although his father hesitated in the beginning.

When asked if he had any doubts when entering the program, Smith says that the most difficult obstacle was the thought of how it would effect his career when he would return.

Presently, Smith is relaxing and plans on looking for a job in either the St. Louis or Kansas City area. He says that he would be most happy to share his experiences with the people of Sikeston.

Dear Ann Landers

Assault victim seeks Ann for help

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago, when I was almost 14, I was sexually assaulted. That horrible nightmare is never completely out of my mind.

Whenever a guy puts his arm around me I get turned off. I just can't stand to be touched. Do you think maybe I just haven't met the right guy yet? No one knows of the terrible thing that happened to me and I'd prefer to keep it this way. Please tell me what to do. I worry a lot that my whole life is ruined.--Desperate

Dear D.: The trauma resulting from a sexual assault can create life-long problems unless something is done to help the victim overcome feelings of shame and anxietey.

You should have had counseling immediately. There are now Rape Crises Center is many cities. They offer precisely the kind of help you need.

There are other agancies that counsel psychologically disturbed people who can't pay. Contact Community Referral Service (phone book) or your county or state Mental Health Group. The Salvation Army and YWCA also provide excellent counseling services. Get going. You're two years late.

Dear Ann Landears: I'm so mad I could scream. Please print this letter for all mothers who feel they simple MUST clean the bedrooms of their grown children.

I am 20, female and pay $80 a month for room and board. When I'm not working I'm usually out. I'm not the neatest person in the world and my room does get messy but if it doesn't bother ME, why should it bother my mother? I keep telling her to keep the door closed and stay out of there. Every Sunday I clean it thoroughly.

My mother is a neurotic "Crazy Clean." She also likes to rearrange furniture. I almost broke my neck when I went to lie down where my bed used to be.

A few days ago my sister needed a pocketbook for school. I dumped the contents out of mine into a paper sack, gave it to her and got out my new one. It was late so I didn't put the paper bag in a drawer--just left it on the floor, next to my dresser.

The next day I looked for the bag and couldn't find it. I had a hunch what had happened but waited till I cooled off before I asked. Sure enough--my mother had thrown it out. "Thought it was garbage."

In that "garbage" was my address book, poems I had written, letters, receipts, reminder notes--things I'll never be able to replace.

What can I do about Crazy Lady's Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your mother is a compulsive cleaner, so telling her to stay out of your room won't help. Buy a key and use it. After the recent disaster I'll bet you won't get much flak.

Dear Ann: It's time somebody wrote and told you what great things a spanking can do for a wife who behaves like a child. I speak from experience.

My wife was 17 when we married. She couldn't cook, wouldn't clean house or sew a button on a shirt. Just spoiled rotten, she was. I decided what the little brat needed was a good old-fashioned spanking so I put her right over my knee and let her have it. All it took was twice. Now she's a great little wife. Tell 'em, Annie.--King

Dear King (Kong, maybe?): Just because you married an immature child who responded to punishment befitting a five-year-old doesn't mean your approach is right. I feel sorry for you both.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs--or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot--in moderation? Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

RICHARD SHAKARIAN
HAS MINISTERED TO 300 OF FINANCIALLY ELITE IN GENEVA & PARIS
SPECIAL GUEST ON 700 CLUB & P.T.L.
POWERFUL PHYSICAL HEALINGS

Led by the Holy Spirit in the United States and 47 nations, Richard Shakarian ministers to as many as 16,000 persons a night in great arenas to reach this generation for Christ.

He has conducted crusades in 32 American cities with 1/2 million young families in attendance. Tens of thousands answer the altar call and find Christ each year.

Unable to respond personally to invitations in 26 nations due to his heavy work schedule, Oral Roberts selected Richard and his wife, Vangie, to take his place and minister healing to the people. In addition to the tremendous healings that took place, over 10,000 persons received Jesus on that one trip.

Richard has spoken before the congressional prayer groups in Washington D.C. and has ministered to 300 of the tops in the financial world in Geneva and Paris.

His father, Demos, founder of Full Gospel Businessmens' Fellowship, recognized that Richard had, from an early age, a special touch upon his life from God.

In these services husbands and wives have been reunited, unsaved family members come to Christ and families are put back together with love.

Ramirez and Vilas ousted at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A pair of tennis twins from Onalaska, Wis., Tim and Tom Gullikson, have caught the imagination of the massive crowds at the centenary Wimbledon Tennis Championships this week.

Oldtimers were even mentioning the legendary tennis-playing twins, Willie and Ernie Renshaw, who dominated the fledgling Wimbledon tournaments of the 1880s when tennis was still played in long trousers and straw hats.

The Renshaws learned their tennis on an asphalt court at school, and the story is much the same for the Gullikson, 25-year-olds who picked up most of their tennis savvy in public parks playing against each other.

For four gruelling hours under a hot sun Thursday, Tim fought his heart out on a packed outside court, with many in the record 37,815 crowd straining their necks to get a glimpse of his battle against No. 7 men's singles seed, Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Matching the masterful Mexican at his own game with finesse at the net, Gullikson took the first two sets 6-3, 6-4, lost the third 3-6 and wasted four match points in the fourth which Ramirez won 9-8 on a tiebreaker.

Ramirez, with his Mexican bandit mustache, sprayed a strained stomach muscle with painkiller between games, while Gullikson suffered cramps in the closing stages of the tight deciding set as every point drew oohs and aahs from the crowd.

After breaking in the fifth game to go 3-2, Gullikson reached 5-4 and was serving for the match. He lost another four match points before piledriving a serve which Ramirez could only hit into the net for the match.

The muscular American whooped in relief, the crowd burst into prolonged applause and Gullikson took a spare tennis ball and clouted it high over the grandstands.

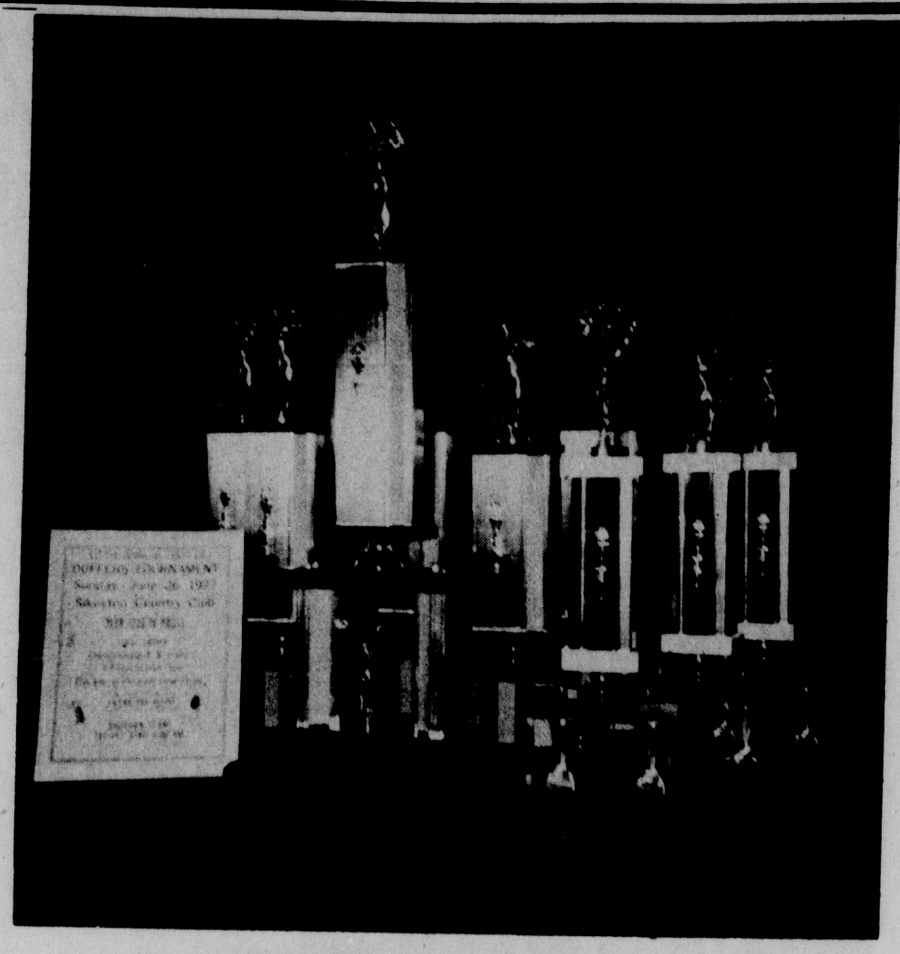

Californian Billy Martin also turned in a big upset, dumping Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in straight sets. The top men's seeds, Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, posted victories as did the top women's seeds, Chris Evert and Martina Navaratilova.

After his match Gullikson explained why he kept looking up to the players' restaurant where his wife Rosemary, and his brother Tom and his wife Julie were watching and rooting for him.

"We always try to watch each other play — it helps," said an exhausted Tim after the match. He now meets Brian Fairlie of New Zealand in the third round.

Their showing in Paris and Wimbledon is the more remarkable for their late entry into world class tennis. After both graduating from North Illinois University, they became teaching tennis pros until Tim decided to try out for the pro circuit two years ago and persuaded his brother to join him. They quickly climbed up the U.S. rankings and made the Grand Prix circuit.

Duffers trophies

Over $700 in prizes, including the above trophies, will be awarded to winners in this Sunday's Sikeston Jaycee Duffers Tournament at the Sikeston Country Club. Trophies will be awarded to the first place winners in each of the five classes and also in three other special categories.

Ex-farm hand stings K.C.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Does your heart brim with vengeance, Ruppert Jones?

No.

"How can your heart be full of vengeance toward the organization that drafted you, gave you a chance in life and taught you to be a winner?"

Jones was most assuredly a winner Thursday night in leading the Seattle Mariners to an 8-6 victory over the team that made him available in the expansion draft, the Kansas City Royals.

The muscular 22-year-old centerfielder collected three hits and drove in a run in the 10-inning fray that allowed the Mariners to leave town with a split of the four-game series.

Jones was one of several promising outfield prospects in the Royals organization when he was brought up during the last two months of the 1976 season.

His first major league at-bat produced an RBI single. He collected two hits and three RBI his second appearance, and later had a three-hit game as the Royals drove to the Western Division title.

Yet the Royals, solidly entrenched with experienced outfielders, ordered him a ticket to the minor leagues this season.

"No way," Jones said Thursday night. "In the two months I was here I could see I was better than everybody they had. I knew my abilities, even if they didn't. And I'm not the kind of guy to sit on the bench either. I told them I'd come to spring training but I told them I wasn't going to sign a contract."

So advised, the Royals put him up for grabs in the expansion draft and the Mariners made him the first player taken. He's responded with 14 home runs, 46 RBI and a batting average nearing .270

"They treated me badly those two months last year," Jones said. "But I don't have any hard feelings toward the organization. They vave me a chance to play.

"It doesn't give me any special thrill to beat the Royals. I still like the team and I know it's a great organization. Most of those guys are good friends of mine. I want them to win every game they play, except when they play us."

With the game tied, 6-6, after nine, Dan Meyer lashed a double off Mark Littell and came around to score on a soft single by Craig Reynolds. Fred Patek's second error of the game allowed Bob Stinson to score the Mariners' eighth run.

It was a see-saw battle from start to finish. George Brett tripled home a run in the Kansas City first, then the Mariners tied it on the first of Skip Jutze's three RBI.

Darrell Porter's two-run homer gave the Royals a two-run lead that lasted until Jones singled home a run in the third.

In the sixth, Jutze unloaded a two-run double and scored on a sacrifice bunt to give the Mariners a 5-3 advantage.

Amos Otis then doubled home a run and tied it up on Patek's ground out.

Bill Stein's RBI single in the seventh was matched by Cookie Rojas' run-scoring single in the eighth and the game went into extra innings.

Ime Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

Having taken a leave of absence from the Standard for a few days for a very good reason, this reporter is now ready to return to the typewriter and offer my unsolicited opinions on a few items of interest in the sporting world.

Most Redbird fans hated to see the talente Bake McBride go (at least I did), but you've got to admit that the trade for the Phillies' Tom Underwood looks good for the Cards.

The Cardinals, even without McBride, still have one of the most deep and talented outfields in the game. Lou Brock, Jerry Mumphrey, Tony Scott, Mike Anderson and Hetty Cruz can team in any combination to give the club a solid garden trio every day, without wearing out any of them. McBride, who wasn't playing much anyway and was off to a terrible start with the stick, won't be missed.

And while the team is not hurting itself by unloading the injury-prone McBride, they are definitely improving themselves by picking up the lefty hurler Underwood. Underwood, who was 10-5 as a spot starter for the Phils last year, has age on his side at 23. And, if he doesn't break into the regular starting rotation (which he probably will, since Pete Falcone is going bad and John Denny is injured again), he will provide the club with an all- important second lefthanded arm that can be helpful, as the Cardinals have found out the hard way.

Meanwhile, don't be surprised if a trade is just the thing that McBride needs to motivate him to try just a little harder and play up to his potential. But if he does, don't blame the Cards for giving up on him too soon – they were more than p patient.

There were also some pros and cons to the Doug Capilla for Rawly Eastwick swap with Cincinnati. As in all trades, we'll have to wait a while to see who got the best of it.

On the positive side, the Redbirds are getting one of the top righthanded relievers in the game in Eastwick. And they got him for a minor leaguer -- a minor leaguer with great potential, granted, but still a minor leaguer.

On the negative end of the deal, the club is obviously looking only in the short- range future in making the trade. Eastwick is unsigned, and despite Gussie Busch's statements that he expects him to agree to terms with the Cardinals, the talented reliever has bowed that he will play out his option and taken his chances in the big money free agent market.

The Cardinals know they risk they are taking. They're fools if they don't think there's a good chance that Eastwick will play out his option after this season and throw baseballs for someone else. But if Eastwick's presence in the bullpen makes the difference for the Birds down the stretch and wins the pennant for them, it will have been a good trade -- even if he does leave. If they don't win the pennant, and if Capilla turns out to be a big winner, and if Eastwick does indeed play out his option and leave the Birds, Bing Devine can write this one down in his "bum deals" column.

The "ifs" will decide it.

St. Louis could host Olympics in 1984

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — There are enough existing facilities in the St. Louis region to host the 1984 Olympics, according to a university study issued today.

The study by the Center for Urban and Environmental Research and Services at Southern Illinois University was written by Robert Mendelson.

The study compared seating capacity at various competition sites in St. Louis with those in Montreal, after elaborate additions were made for the 1976 Olympics held there.

"These comparisons should erase any doubt about the feasibility of an Olympiad in St. Louis — the resources are available," said Mendelson.

"Although it may appear fantastic, it is entirely possible that St. Louis could be the host for the Olympics in 1984," added Mendelson, an associate professor of earth sciences and planning.

He said Montreal was left with a debt of $1 billion because of last year's extravaganza. He said many of the Canadians' major expenditures are not necessary in St. Louis.

"Funds to construct the stadium, pools and velodrome in Montreal totaled $910 million," said Mendelson. "St. Louis already has major indoor and outdoor stadiums and diving and swimming pools. Another $100 million was spent in Montreal to construct the 1,000-apartment Olympic Village." But he says existing housing or new units in St. Louis built at a fraction of that cost could be turned over to local housing authorities after the games.

Mendelson turned over his report to St. Louis officials for possible consideration.

Duffers gather Sunday

The Sikeston Jaycees will hold their 12th Annual "Duffers" Golf Tournament at the Sikeston Country Club on Sunday June 26.

The event is open to all area golfers and "duffers", and will feature five classes of competition including: Championship, A, B, C and D classes; plus a special "cheaters" class for low handicap golfers.

There will be over $700.00 in prizes awarded including trophies for first place in each class and also in three other special categories.

The Tournament will begin with a shotgun start promptly at 11:00 A.M.

Players or foursomes who have not signed up in advance should arrive at the course 45 minutes early to enter the Tournament.

The entry fee for the Tournament will be $12.00. The field will be limited to the first 120 entries. Any proceeds from the event will be used in funding Jaycee civic projects in the Sikeston area.

For information on the Tournament contact Mike Couch or Eric Piel at the Bank of Sikeston, 471-1200.

'Musican managers' game continues with Rangers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Lucchesi to Stanky to Ryan is not a famous double-play combination. It's just this week's combination of managers for the Texas Rangers.

Frank Lucchesi was fired as the Rangers' skipper Wednesday, and replaced — supposedly through 1978 — by Eddie Stanky.

But a homesick Stanky abruptly quit Thursday after one game and third base coach Connie Ryan, 57, was named interim manager by Texas executive vice president Eddie Robinson.

The Rangers were 31-31 under Lucchesi this season, then 1-0 under Stanky after rallying to a 10-8 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night. But under Ryan, they're 0-1 after a 12-2 loss Thursday to Minnesota.

Though there has been no official announcement, it is expected that Ryan will manage the team through the end of the season. Robinson said no decision would be made until he discusses the matter with owner Brad Corbett.

Ryan was hired by the Rangers as a coach prior to this season. Before that, he coached and scouted for the Atlanta Braves from 1971-76.

Ryan last managed in 1968 in the minor leagues. Earlier speculation had him replacing Lucchesi, but Robinson said flatly at that time that Ryan would never replace Lucchesi as the Rangers' manager.

"Now we have a completely different sitation," said Robinson. "I see no reason why Connie couldn't run the ball club until such a time as we needed somebody else."

After arriving in Anaheim, Ryan said he was "just taking things as they come, I'd be guessing if I said anything now. I'll know better in four or five days.

"I think I want the job permanently," Ryan added. "It hasn't been offered to me yet. I'm going to wait a couple of days before I say much."

Stanky, 59, left for his Mobile, Ala., home from Minneapolis Thursday morning. He will return as baseball coach at the University of South Alabama, a position he held the past nine years.

Robinson said Stanky telephoned him Thursday morning to tell him he was at the airport and heading for home.

Robinson said Stanky told him he decided that he couldn't leave his family and 85-year-old father, who lives with the family in Mobile.

As far as accepting the Rangers' offer to manage the team, Stanky said upon his arrival in Mobile Thursday that "I should have known better."

Stanky said after Wednesday night's game he was "lonesome and homesick," and that he enjoyed his brief return to pro baseball and would have stayed "if I didn't have to go to my room alone each night."

Godwin still alive in Mo-Am.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Bryant Barnes, thanks to his wife, is playing the best golf of his life.

And, conveniently enough, the current site happens to be the Missouri State Amateur Golf Championship at the Country Club of Missouri.

Barnes, a Kansas City resident, knocked off Barry Brown of St. Louis, 2 and 1, Thursday as the amateur field was narrowed to 16 players for the two 18-hole rounds today.

Others advancing, despite rain and soggy grounds, were defending champ Jimmy Jackson of St. Louis, 1975 winner Bruce Hollowell of Springfield and the 1973 titlist, Buddy Godwin of Poplar Bluff.

Barnes, a 39-year-old investment broker, said that his play has improved greatly since his wife began playing golf on weekends. Now she shoots in the mid-80s.

"Before all this, I just stood up and hit it," he said. "I didn't know what I was doing.

"The last three years I started taking lessons from Stan (Thirsk, a Kansas City pro). I still don't know all that I'm doing, but since all this happened the best golf I have played has been in the last years."

Jackson eliminated Don Dupske, also of St. Louis, 2-up, while Holloway defeated George White of Springfield, 3 and 2, and Godwin beat Dave Cochran Sr. of Claycrest, 4 and 3.

The golfers were originally scheduled to play two 18-hole rounds, cutting the field to eight. But those plans were shelved after rain fell throughout the first round, eventually resulting in a 1½-hour delay.

A prevailing mist made it difficult to judge the par 72 course, and the field's stronger golfers saw their drives neutralized by the rain-laden ground.

Sikeston area karate fighters are racking up the trophies

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

Southeast Missouri Karate fighters are rapidly establishing a reputation for their accomplishments in the various tournaments in this region. during a four- week period in May and June, area fighters were involved in four major fighting tournaments: the St. Louis Championships, the Keishenkan Tournament in Jonesboro, Ark., the "Memphis in May" Tournament in Memphis and the Bowling Green, Ky., Tournament.

Woodrow Speed of Sikeston, a former Missouri state champion and a finalist in the 1975 National Championships, won $100 in cash after earning the title of Grand Champion and claiming the heavyweight Black Belt championship in the St. Louis Tournament.

Carlton Bobo finished second in the heavyweight Yellow Belt division and Joe Green finished first among the lightweight White Belt fighters.

Area fighters claimed six trophies, including three firsts, in the Kieshenkan Tournament at Jonesboro. Clifton Hamm finished on top of the heap in the Brown Belt division. Larry Robinson, a high school freshman, finished first in the lightweight Green Belt division.

The "Memphis in May" Tournament was sponsored by Bill Wallace, the World Middleweight Champion. Three Southeast Missouri fighters brought trophies home from the Memphis tourney, including the third consecutive first place finish for Joe Green. Green topped the field in the lightweight Yellow Belt division.

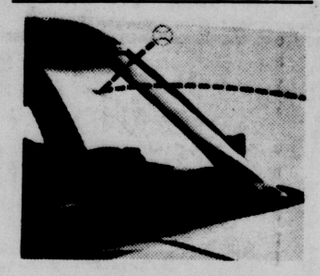

Carlton Bobo, like Larry Robinson a freshman in high school fighting adults, finished second in the heavyweight Yellow Belt competition. Woodrow Speed was a fourth-place finisher in the heavyweight Black Belt fighting.

Gary Gardner was the only area trophy- winner in the Bowling Green Tournament, but he brought home first place in the Blue Belt division for fighting.

The wins gave Semo fighters 15 trophies in a four-week time period.

"He has almost the best timing I've ever seen," testified Morrison about his protege.

"Steve Cauthen is back."

Cameras click and grind. Writers write.

But it wasn't a screen play. It was just another true life adventure in the story of Steve Cauthen, a kid from Kentucky who has shocked big time thoroughbred racing.

"That a way Stevie," roared a bettor as Cauthen rode Little Miracle into the winner's circle after the second race Thursday at Belmont Park. "We missed ya."

And they were glad to see him, cailbirds and box-seat patrons alike, cheering and applauding the 17-year old from the time he appeared in the paddock until he disappeared in the tunnel leading to the jockey's room after riding his 277th winner of the year, tops in the nation.

"I enjoyed my rest when it happened," Cauthen said a couple of hours before returning in describing how he felt for about two weeks after suffering a broken wrist and a rib and cuts of the face and hands when Bay Streak fell during a race at Belmont.

"... then I got better, and when you get better, you want to race."

Cauthen returned to New York last Monday and exercised horses for the next three days in preparing for what turned out to be a hero's welcome.

"Hey Steve, Hey Steve," fans shouted as Cauthen appeared in the saddling area, where he was quickly surrounded by photographers and television cameramen.

May expand Faurot Field

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A proposal to expand Faurot Field and raise ticket prices by 50 cents went before the University of Missouri Board of Curators today.

The plan to add as many as 10,530 seats to the football stadium has been recommended by the board's physical facilities and finance boards. The 50-cent surcharge would be use to pay back the loan for the construction.

If the expansion is approved by the full board, bids will be sought after July 1.

In action Thursday, the board's finance committee adopted a new policy concerning the investment of about $50 million in university funds.

The money can now be invested in certificates of deposit in addition to investment by U.S. Treasury bills.

The change could bring in up to $350,000 more in additional investment dividends.

The committee stipulated the investment will generally be made in Missouri banks, but investors were told to seek the best deals, which would include out-of-state banks.

Powells are top Father-Son duo

The Malden Country Club was the scene of the Father- Son Scramble Golf Tournament last Saturday and Sunday. Virgil and Sam Powell of Malden were the over all winners as they shot a two-day total of 128, 16 under par.

The "A" Flight was won by Bob and Mitchell of Sikeston who carded a nine under par 135. Second place was taken Sikeston dueo Bill and Clayton Vandivort with a seven under 137.

Winners in the "B" Flight were Bill and Tom Lee who combined for a six under par 138.

Ray and David Wilhelm of Cape Girardeau took the "C" Flight honors as they carded a 144. Gaither and Gaither Daugherty Junior wound up with a 145 to place them second.

A 149 gave Don and Jon Winston of Gideon the "D" Flight title, while Daryl and Steve Kelly of Walnut Ridge shot a seven over par 151 to grabb the "E" Flight honors.

Efficient Bug

The average lightbulb doesn't hold a candle to the firefly. A good bulb converts only about 10 percent of its energy into light, wasting the rest as heat. A firefly operates its lamp without heat at better than 95 per cent efficiency.

EPA preparing to enforce waterway law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is preparing to move against hundreds of industries and municipalities that will likely fail to meet a July 1 deadline for cleaning up waterways.

At the same time, however, the EPA declared Tuesday that "significant progress" has been made in a five-year water pollution abatement program that began in 1972.

But the agency said 300 industries and 100 municipal governments face enforcement actions such as lawsuits if they don't meet the deadline.

Thomas C. Jorling, designated but not yet sworn in as assistant administrator for water and hazardous materials, said the EPA could not name those industries and municipalities believed unable to meet water quality standards. Such predictions might weaken EPA's bargaining position with some polluters and might jeopardize potential legal actions, he said.

Jorling noted that under the 1972 law industries were required to apply the "best practicable" techniques to reduce discharges of pollution into the nation's waterways by July 1, 1977.

Municipalities were required to apply "secondary treatment" — essentially filtering and disinfection — to sewage discharges, or more stringent treatment measures where necessary to protect water quality.

Jorling said the vast majority of some 4,000 major industrial polluters have complied with water cleanup regulations, and that only about 300 face enforcement actions.

He said the EPA's enforcement drive could result in the imposition of scientific clean-up schedules or lawsuits claiming penalties up to $10,000 per day, which could result in multi-million-dollar fines in some cases.

Jorling said EPA regional offices have been instructed to set up priorities for taking enforcement actions, stressing first the largest polluters who could be trying harder, and taking it easy on polluters forced to miss the deadline through no fault of their own.

The agency listed a dozen industrial categories with the largest percentage of plants likely to be in violation of the deadline.

Blast furnaces showed the worst clean-up record, with 46 per cent expected to violate water clean-up requirements after July 1, Jorling said.

Electric power plants and pulp mills were each forecast to have a 34 per cent violation rate after the deadline.

In the primary metals industries, 21 per cent were expected to miss the deadline.

SALMON STOCKING

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor, Ont., has been stocked with chinook salmon and steelhead and brown trout. According to Sports Afield magazine, the restocking is an apparent result of a successful cleanup of the river.

Detroit River forms the link between lakes Erie and St. Clair.

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B

When Frank decided to get married, he was determined that his marriage wasn't going to be like a lottery where you tear up the ticket if you lose. To insure the permancney of his relationship, he had his bride-to-be sign a contract in which she agreed that she would never divorce him.

It didn't take too long, however, before Frank's bride concluded that her marriage, although not intended to be a trial, was a tribulation. While Frank was a rich man, he was a very poor husband and, in desperation, she started an action to divorce him.

"I won't permit it," insisted Frank in court. "A deal is a deal. She signed a contract that she would never divorce me, therefore, she can't do it."

"What contract?," questioned Frank's bride. "If he means that agreement I signed, it's not worth a hill of beans. You can't contract as to the future relationship of a husband and wife. If a person could predict the course of a marriage, he could predict the course of the world--and control it. Consequently, I'm not bound by that agreement."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Frank's desperate wife to divorce him?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes. The judge held that divorces are governed strictly and wholly by law. And, concluded the judge, given cause under the law that would entitle a wife to a divorce, she is entitled to same regardless of any contract she may have signed to the contrary.

Handicapped children to at attend summer camp

JEFFERSON CITY — Forty-four handicapped children between eight and 14 years of age will be given the opportunity to attend a five-day summer camp through the efforts and contributions of the Missouri National Guard.

The Guard, in cooperation with the division of mental retardation-developmental disabilities, will sponsor five days of camping for these children, July 4-8, at Camp Wonderland, Rocky Mount.

Four children from each of the Division's 11 Regional centers for the developmentally disabled will attend the camp. These children will be selected by the staff of each of the centers. In addition to this praticular Camp, the Guard is providing 15 camperships for children who may attend camps on dates of their choice throughout the summer months. The Camp Programs are made possible through voluntary contributions of more than 11,000 Missouri Guardmembers from throughout the State.

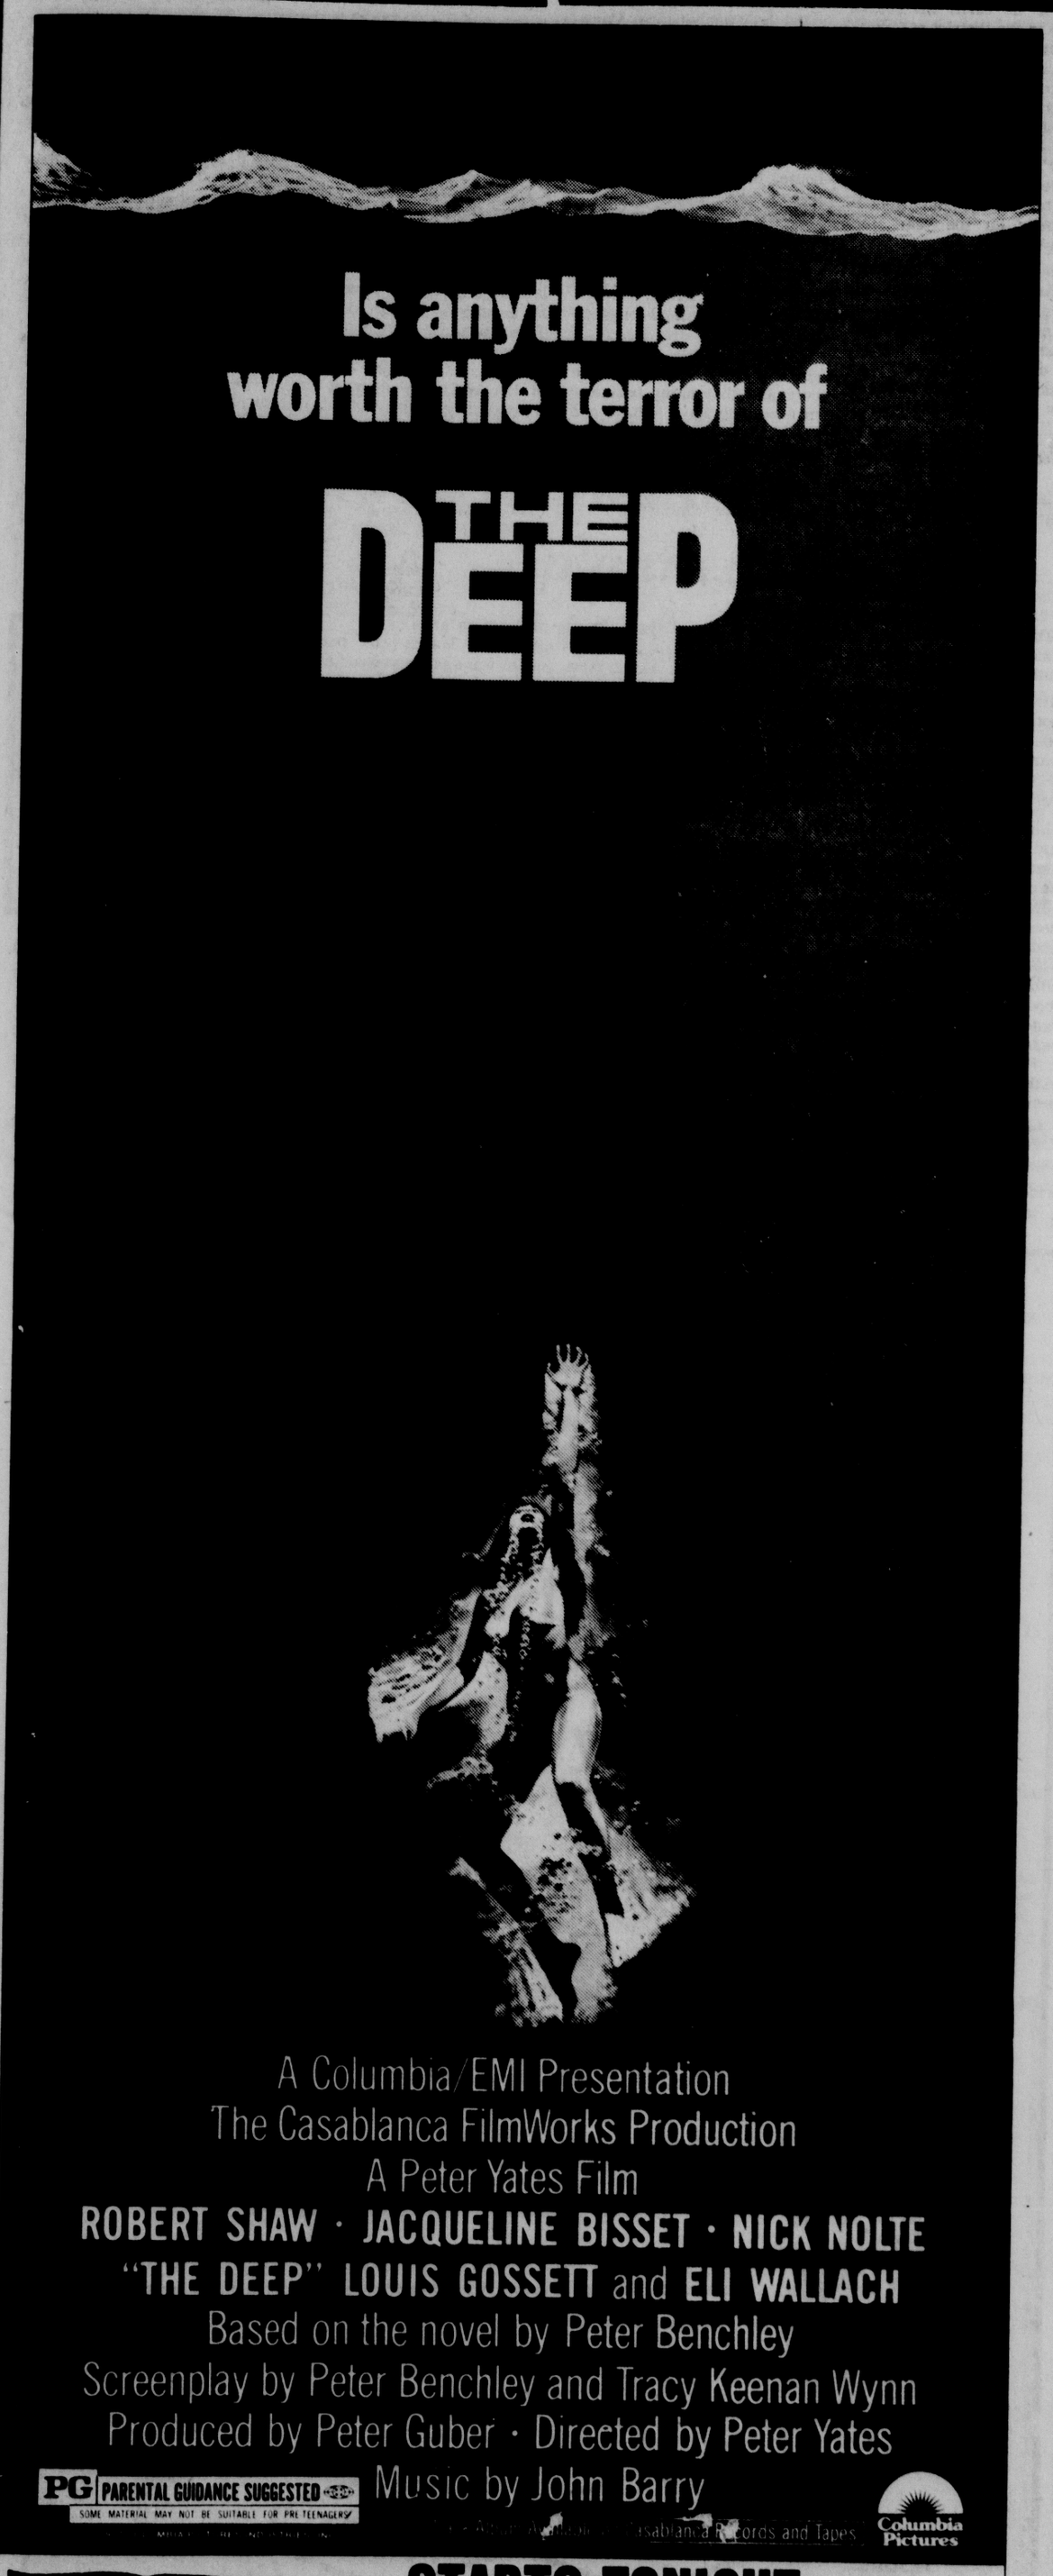

Robert Kyle, director of the Rolla Regional Center, is serving as division coordinator of the program. CPT Richard Brown, Missouri Guard equal employment officer, is corrdinating the Guard's efforts. The division of mental retardation- developmental disabilities will provide transportation to and from the camp for the children and a major portion of the camp staff. The Guard is providing funding, cooks and activity directors, for swimming, fishing and various arts and crafts.

The camp will begin on July 4 with a large night fireworks display and end on July 8 with Brig. Gen. Robert E. Buechler, the adjutant general, presenting awards to the children for their various accomplishments made during the encampment.

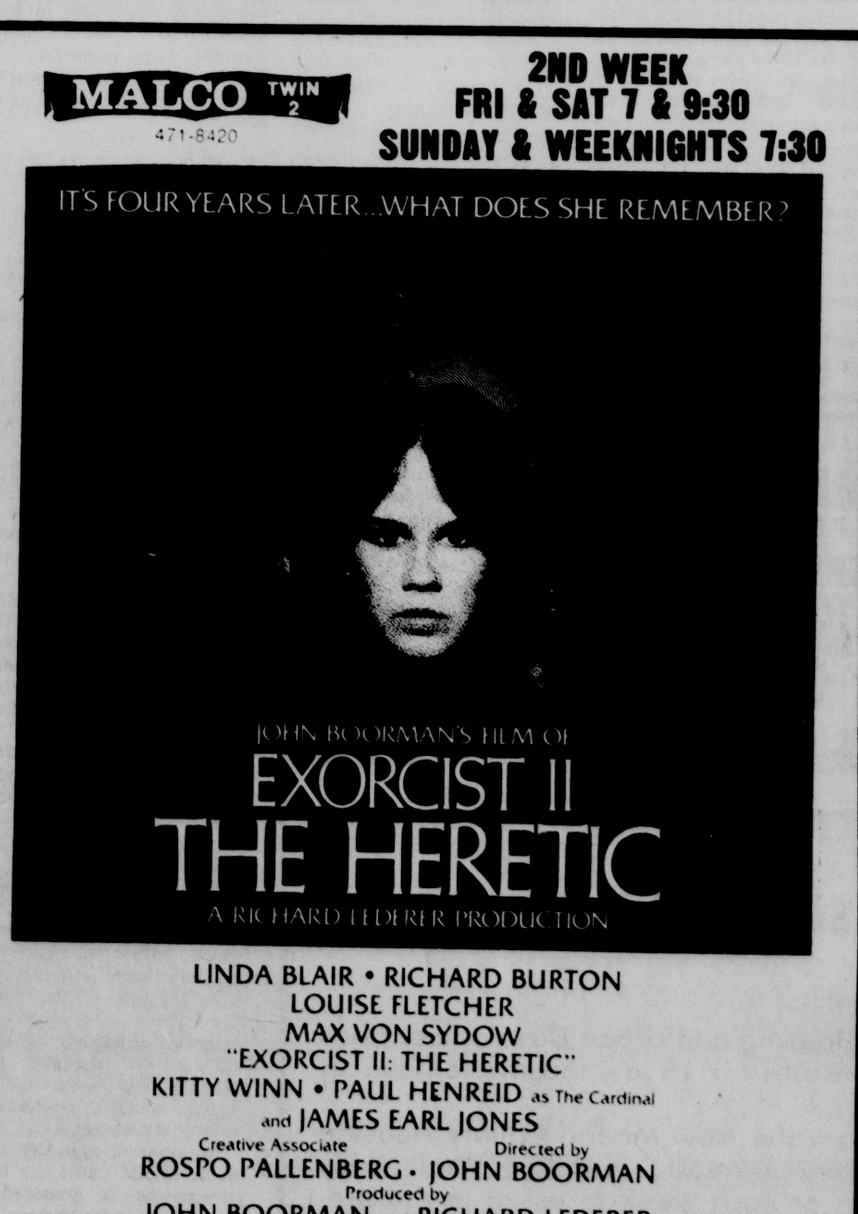

Wonderland Camp, now in its seventh season, is completely accessible to the handicapped. It includes cabins, shelter houses, boating and swimming areas, nature trails and a picnic area. Operated by Wonderland Camp Foundation, it was constructed through the leadership and financial support of the Missuri Jaycees. Charles T. Miller of Columbia, who spearheaded the development, is the foundation's president.

The Missouri National Guard has always participated in various community assistance projects and, according to guard officials, it is hoped that projects such as this will foster better guard-community relations. "This is a most worthwhile program and we are pleased to have the opportunity to participate," said General Buechler.

Caseworker to be in north Scott County

SCOTT CITY— The Scott County Family Services office has announced that a food stamp caseworker will be in Scott City at the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation office, 203 Emma St., July 13, from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and in Chaffee at the Housing Authority 800 S. Main, St., July 13, from 1:30 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Only those persons living in Scott County and wishing to apply for or to be recertified for Food Stamps, who do not receive Aid to Dependent Children or General Relief should come to these centers. Those persons who have been receiving food stamps should bring their identification (pink) card with them, along with receipts for housing, utilities, and medical expenses.

Jackie Gleason has surgery for droopy eyelids

MIAMI (AP) — Jackie Gleason's doctor says the rotund comedian has had his face lifted because his "eyelids drooped so he couldn't read the scripts."

"The operations weren't cosmetic; they were more reconstructive," said Dr. Bernard Halperin. "He needed the operation for his career."

He said Gleason underwent two plastic surgery operations over a 4½-hour period Tuesday at Jackson Memorial Hospital. The comedian was said to be in good condition, but full recuperation could take months.

Woman happy with solar heating savings

CROSS TIMBERS (AP)— Before Mrs. Martha Moore received her new solar heating system, she burned 345 gallons of propane in the month of January alone and could not get the temperature in her living room above 60.

Since the West Central Missouri Rural Development Corporation installed a $90 solar heating unit in early February, she has used only about 100 gallons of propane and the temperature in her living room for the rest of the winter was 72. Of course, January was the coldest month most Missourians can remember, but Mrs. Moore is happy with her energy savings.

The unit was one of several installed by the agency. A piece of tin painted black is placed under a glass plate on the south side of the house and air is circulated over the tin.

Frank Podkul, who works for the federal volunteer agency, ACTION, said there are many expensive solar heating systems on the market, but inexpensive models can provide substantial heating bill savings for low-income families.

He said such a system can save a family 30 per cent on their heating bills.

Rogers wedding plans announced

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pop-country singer Kenny Rogers and Mary Ann Gordon of the "Hee Haw" TV show plan to be married.

Rogers recorded "Lucille," a current hit on the pop and country charts. Miss Gordon plays a Southern belle on "Hee Haw."

NEW PRESIDENT

Ichord refuses to pay Maryland income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Missouri congressman says his Maryland home has been burglarized three times, the state government is "corrupt to the core" and he'll go to the highest court to keep from paying any income taxes there.

Even if living in Maryland was all it should be, Rep. Richard Ichord says he won't fork over state income tax money because he earns his $57,500 salary in the District of Columbia, not Maryland.

But state tax collectors are threatening court action unless Ichord agrees to pay up.

In an exchange of written barbs with the Maryland comptroller's office, Ichord has acknowledged that he has not filed tax return statements to Annapolis for the years 1972 through 1975.

"I have not earned one dime in Maryland," he blustered. "And as a matter of principle, I will not pay one dime of taxes in Maryland untilthe highest court decides that I must pay such taxes if any are owing in excess of my Missouri income taxes."

Asked by a reporter how much he owes the state of Maryland, the Missouri Democrat growled: "That is none of your business. You don't have a right to ask."

But he did say he pays "considerable income tax" to Missouri. He declined to give an exact figure.

Ichord, a former business law and accounting professor at the University of Missouri, says he pays real estate tax on the house he has owned for 10 years in Prince Georges County, Md.

But he complained to Maryland officials that his real estate taxes are "approximately three times as high as Missouri," and that he gets very little governmental services in return.

To wit, Ichord noted, his house has been burglarized three times.

Ichord's congressional colleagues from Maryland don't see why Ichord doesn't pay up and they have been known to suggest it. But Ichord snapped at one such Maryland congressman:

"I found out that ... Maryland government is corrupt to the core and that many businessmen not only have to have one black bag, but have to carry actually as many as two black bags in order to do business.

"Witness the past conduct of your former Gov. (Spiro T.) Agnew and the present trial of your present Gov. (Marvin) Mandel. I have never known such corruption to exist in any state in the union. I am sure it still exists."

Agnew resigned as vice president after pleading no contest to income tax charges. Mandel is being tried on corruption charges.

Ichord's argument with Maryland could be shelved by legislation expected to go to the White House soon. It would exempt House and Senate members from paying income taxes in Maryland or Virginia.

They would still have to pay income taxes in their home states.

The District of Columbia does not tax the income of persons who work in the district but live elsewhere.

George F. Smith of Maryland's comptroller's office says he is sticking to current law. That means, he says, members of Congress who live in Maryland for more than six months of the taxable year must be treated as any other individual taxpayer.

But, counters Ichord: "I do not sleep in Maryland more than six months out of the year."

Lightning hits house

Lightning struck a utility pole and set fire to a fuse box in the L. C. McConnell home, just off Brown Spur Road south of Highway 60, during the storm Thursday night, according to the fire division of the Public Safety Department.

The lightning hit about 5:54 p.m. and fire damage was confined to the fuse box.

Construction walkout continues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Major construction projects in eastern Missouri remain shut down today, after members of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 513, Hoisting Engineers, voted overwhelmingly to continue their strike.

A spokesman for the union said members Thursday night rejected an offer by the Associated General Contractors of Missouri that was virtually the same as one turned down June 14th.

Since May 1 the strike has shut down major highway projects thcoughout eastern Missouri and the $152 million Clarence Cannon Dam near Hannibal. About 4,500 workers have been affected by the walkout.

Details of the latest offer were not revealed. Contractors have been seeking concessions in work rules in an effort to make them more competitive with nonunion contractors. No new talks have been scheduled.

Hart attended the wedding with amateur photographer Lewis Lindsey, who at the time was a clerk and photographer at the Granite State Reformatory, officials said.

Hart was serving three concurrent 10-year sentences for rape and kidnaping.

Lindsey, now retired in Santa Ana, Calif., said Hart went to the wedding with him and later developed the negatives and prints in the prison darkroom.

Lindsey said Hart attended the wedding with him as a trusty assigned to carry the photography equipment. He said he does not remember Hart talking to any guests at the wedding.

"He wasn't outgoing. He would sit around on the side and sometimes take my pictures for me," he said

Lindsey said Hart had access to the negatives but he did not know if the convict kept copies after printing them for the bride.

Hart was released from prison in 1969, the year after the photos were taken.

Hart was paroled in March 1969, but within three months was again arrested for trying to break into the Tulsa home of a woman detective. He was charged and convicted of a total of four first-degree burglaries. He was sent to the state prison at McAlester, then returned to Mayes County in April 1973 to be a witness. He escaped from the jail shortly afterward.

Clerk says districts fairly evenly divided

BLOOMFIELD – Stoddard County's two county court districts are "pretty well divided insofar as population is concerned," in light of a new Missouri Supreme Court ruling requiring such an equal division, County Clerk Marvin Capps said today.

A recent state high court ruling said that any division of a county into county court districts that did not make them as equal as possible insofar as population is concerned is unconstitutional.

The case had been brought before the Supreme court by a "township- divided county" such as Stoddard County is, and the county that was a part of the legal action had claimed that such a division was impossible due to township lines.

Capps, however, explained that the Stoddard County court met that requirement as nearly as possible by changing the boundary lines of the two county court districts.

At present, he pointed out, the First District, represented by Judge Jack Ward, includes the townships of Castor, Duck Creek, Pickett, New Lisbon and Richland. The Second District, represented by Judge Harold (Pete) Snider, is composed of only Liberty and Elk townships. Each has a population of about 12,500, Capps said. The actual population of Snider's Second District, according to the last census, included 1,389 in Elk Township and 10,886 in Liberty Township, Capps pointed out.

"We believe this is nearly equal representation," Capps declared.

'Flying saucers' first reported 30 years ago

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — There were nine of them, shiny, pulsating objects flying over the Cascade Mountains as fast as 1,700 miles per hour. Kenneth Arnold was the first person to report seeing "flying saucers" — 30 years ago today.

The publicity-shy Arnold, now 62, makes a rare public appearance tonight to give the keynote address to a three-day international conference on unidentified flying objects, UFOs, in Chicago.

Arnold, a Boise, Idaho, businessman, was flying his two-seater plane from Chehalis to Yakima on June 24, 1947, when he saw the objects over Mt. Rainier, moving in a strange weaving motion.

"They seemed to be alive in the center, to have the ability to change their density. I know that sounds strange," said Arnold.

"No, I have never claimed to have seen any little men in them. Others have, not me. I didn't want to exploit anyone, and I didn't want to be exploited."

Soon after Arnold's report, UFOs became a craze. The flying saucer term was coined. Everybody seemed to be seeing them. Arnold says he has seen UFOs six times since the first sighting.

To celebrate the anniversary, the New Age Foundation, a UFO group in the Northwest, plans lectures, a salmon bake and a skywatch near the 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier.

Recent Gallup polls show 51 per cent of Americans believe in UFOs. A 1973 Gallup survey found 15 million Americans who claimed to have seen them.

The Air Force, in its Project Blue Book — which investigated thousands of UFO sightings — concluded that some UFO reports were hard to explain, although no national security threat was found.

Now semiretired in Meridian, Idaho, Arnold thinks the UFO phenomenon is grounded in age-old human experience.

His description has remained constant. The craft flew erratically, "like speedboats on rough water," cruising both flat and sideways. They were circular, pulsated like fireflies in the center and traveled at great speeds.

BOOK REVIEW

CROSSING THE BORDER. By Joyce Carol Oates. Vanguard. 256 Pages. $8.95.

In "Crossing The Border," Joyce Carol Oates once more explores the divisions within and between people

Sometimes the borders are physical in this collection of 15 short stories: a young American couple's decision to take a job in Canada, a hassle at a customs checkpoint, a rising river.

Other times, and often simultaneously, the borders are thrown up within her characters: they sort through eccentricity, madness or hysteria, present themselves in tidy fashion and try to convince us that nonsensible things are sensible.

Seven of the stories are about Evan and Renee Maynard, who leave Florida for Evan's new job in Ontario. As the Maynards progress through their new lives, one story at a time, their chronicle stops for other characters in other stories. Yet the feeling is not so much a collection of unrelated stories as chapters of the same novel

Truth and illusion become tangled, and all the while there's a scream choking to escape.

Joyce Carol Oates can tell so much about her characters in so few words — more than you really want to know, sometimes — but in such an overwhelming fashion that one is exhausted. Depressing, but also impressing.

Gospel singing cast announced

The cast of singers has been announced for the old-time gospel singing scheduled at 7 p.m. Saturday at Sikeston Junior High School, located south of the high school field house on Twitty Drive.

Sponsored by the Heritage House Senior Citizens Nutrition Program, the event will feature three groups from Blytheville, Ark., and a wide variety of local area singers.

The Blytheville groups on the program will be the Young Sisters, Hallelujah Chorus and The Revelations.

Local singers featured will include Arnold Joe Myrick, Tolbert Sisters, Larry Davis, Pete Chartrau, Scott Chartrau, Mona Dement, Gene Henzi, Genie Livingston, Campbell Qurrtet, Fred and Mary Lou Lawrence and Burl Vines.

No admission fee will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken. The proceeds will be used for the new kitchen at the Heritage House.

Methodist Vacation Church School ends

A Methodist Vacation Church School, jointly sponosred by three local United Methodist Churches, closed this morning at First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North. The other participating churches included Wesley United Methodist, 600 Pine St., and Smith Chapel United Methodist, 200 Young St.

The closing program at 11:15 a.m. featured singing by children's choral groups and talks by Janice Matthews and the Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist. After the program, a balloon-arama was held on the outside courtyard.

Staff membvers, in addition to Mrs. Matthews, the program coordinator, and Dr. Fulbright, included: Carolyn Walker, youth director, and Mary Wilkison, children's director.

Richard Shakarian to speak here Sunday

Richard Shakarian, son of the founder of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, will speak at a special rally at 6 p.m. Sunday in First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, according to the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor.

The name of Richard's father, Demos Shakarian, is known around the world as the founder and president of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship.

Richard also is known in many lands, where he has traveled as an emissary for Evangelist Oral Roberts.

The Rev. Mr. Wooten said Sunday's rally will mark the first time any of the Shakaralans has spoken in Sikeston. Local talent will provide special music prior to the ministry of Shakarian, with Bernice Wooten as organist and Jane Whitten as pianist.

Homecoming, dedication services set Sunday

Homecoming and dedication services for the new auditorium will be held Sunday at Temple of Faith General Baptist Church, 309 Smith St.

The morning worship service will begin at 10:15 a.m., and will be followed by the dedication service at 11 a.m. The auditorium was completed late last year.

Lunch will be served in the educational building during the noon hour.

In the afternoon, a gospel singing program from 2 to 4 p.m. will feature the Wallace Family from Granite City, Ill., Beardsley Family of St. Louis and the old Big Ridge Quratet, the Thoman Trio and other local singers.

The church pastors are the Revs. Raymond Myrick and Tommy Robinson.

Dexter church to host revival series next week

DEXTER— Revival services will begin Sunday morning and continue each evening at 7:30 through Wednesday at New Life Cathedral Church, located north of Dexter Memorial Hospital one-fourth mile off Highway 60.

The evangelist will be the Rev. Charles Cowan of Adairville, Ky., who has spoken at Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International meetings in this area.

Tubbs family to sing

The Hugh Tubbs Family will sing at the Apostolic Pentecostal Church, 301 William St., the Rev. Charles Warren, pastor, has announced.

The Tubbs Family has traveled throughout the United States for the past five years presenting gospel singing concerts in auditoriums, churches, civic centers, etc.

No admission will be charged, and the event is open to the public.

Graham crusade planned

Official announcement of crusade dates and details is planned for a dinner meeting to which all local ministers are invited at 7 p.m. Monday at the Holiday Inn- Rivermont.

However, Charles Riggs, crusade director for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, says the May dates are firm.

Dr. Graham accepted a crusade invitation last October from Memphis clergymen, civic leaders and businessmen, but no date was set.

Riggs said offices for the crusade opened last month in Holiday City in Memphis, headquarters of Holiday Inns, Inc. He said the organizing team is "here a little bit ahead of schedule" and usually takes six to eight months to put the effort together.

The evangelist's internationally famous crusades are preceded by extensive organizational preparation that involves as many as 40,000 persons, Riggs said. The crusade itself will feature a 7,000 voice choir and require the services of about 1,000 ushers. It is expected to be televised worldwide.

In addition, said Riggs, women's prayer groups will be started in 5,000 homes within a 50- to 75-mile radius of Memphis. The groups usually average eight women each and will be connected to a daily radio program.

Thoughts

"If you are pure and upright, surely then he will rouse himself for you and reward you with a rightful habitation. And though your beginning was small, your latter days will be very great." — Job 8:6, 7.

Fear not that thy life shall come to an end, but rather fear that it shall never have a beginning. — John Henry Cardinal Newman.

Vacation school program closes

A Vacation School of Religion for children 4 years old through eighth grade age closed today at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, 106 N. Stoddard St. The five-day event opened Monday and was conducted from 9 to 11 o'clock each morning.

Participating in the program with the approximately 100 youngsters who attended each day were Sisters Patricia, Carlene and Augusta, as well as adult and teen-agers from the parish who served as teachers, assistants and refreshment and playground supervisors.

The theme of the school was "Being called to and growing as a member of God's family."

Each day time was devoted to presentation of doctrine, arts and crafts and preparation for celebration of the liturgy. All sessions were closed with the celebration of the Eucharistic liturgy.

Dexter church to install new pastor

DEXTER— The Rev. Don Loudenback will be installed here Sunday at 3 p.m. as pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, Dexter, and Grace Lutheran Church a Malden.

He and his wife are parents of two children, Donald and Jennifer. They plan to live in Dexter.

The Rev. Mr. Loudenback was born in Clinton, Okla.; graduated from Lawton High School in Lawton, Okla., in 1953 and began his college training at Cameron State College. After completing two years at Cameron, the moved to Long Beach, Calif., where he was employed by Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., as a switchman.

During this time he enrolled at Long Beach State University, where he continued to wrok toward a baccalaureate degree, with a major in music and a minor in biology. While attending the university he met and married Linda Craft of Whittier, Calif.

After graduation from college they moved to Oklahoma, where Don taught vocal and instrumental music in the public schools of Grandfield and Hollis.

After six years of teaching, he entered Concordia Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ill., in June 1973, with a view to entering the ministry of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. He spent his vicarage (supervised pastoral training) at Zion Luthern Church in Bismarck, N.D. and graduated last month from Concordia Seminary in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Wyatt church to host annual homecoming

WYATT — The Wyatt Pentecostal Holiness Church will observe its annual Homecoming Day Sunday with all-day services featuring an afternoon gospel singing program, the Rev. Lynn Ice, pastor, has announced.

The day will begin with Sunday School at 10 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11 o'clock, lunch in the church dining hall at noon and the singing service at 2 p.m., featuring the Mount Calvary Gospel Singers from Dyess, Ark.

The Welland Canal between Lakes Ontario and Erie has eight locks to detour the 326-foot drop of Niagara Falls and the rapids of the Niagara River.

Weekly jail service planned

A weekly religious service in the Scott County jail at Benton has been arranged through the cooperative efforts of the Sikeston Ministerial Alliance and Sheriff W. F. "Bill" Ferrell, according to an announcemennt released by the Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church and an officer of the alliance. All ministers in thecounty may participate in the services.

The service will be held once a week on Monday evenings at 7 o'clock. It will last 30 minutes, and no more than two persons -- men only -- will be admitted to lead the service.

The prisoners who attend the service will do so voluntarily. If any of the prisoners wishes personal counseling after the service, arrangements for counseling sessions can be made through Sheriff Ferrell.

The services may take various forms, including singing, scripture reading, prayer, short inspirational message, discussion and-or question and answer session, etc.

A schedule of persons to lead the services will be maintained by the Rev. M. Walker, who says any minister in the county may participate in the services, either alone or with another minister or layman from his congregation.

To request inclusion on the schedule, ministers may write the Rev. Paul D. Walker, P. O. Box 928, Sikeston, Mo. 63801, or phone his office, 471-3613, mornings only.

Holy Land films to be shown at Diehlstadt

DIEHLSTADT— The Rev. Harvey Puckett of Ferguson will show films of the Holy Land at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Diehlstadt General Baptist Church.

The prayer

"In thee, O Lord, do I seek refuge; let me never be put to shame; in thy righteousness deliver me!" (Psalm 31:1 RSV)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, give us sufficient faith to trust Your protection. We pray that You will help those who are weak. We pray in the name of Your Son, who showed us Your deep love. Amen.

The POWER of FAITH

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 5. John the Baptist

John the Baptist began preaching out in the Judean wilderness. He constantly urged the people to turn from their sins. Of course, his ministry had been prophesied by the great prophet Isaiah. John wore coarse clothing made from camel's hair and rough leather; he subsisted chiefly on locusts and wild honey.

"Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, And were baptized of him in Jordan confessing their sins." (Matthew 3:5-6)

"I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost..." (Matthew 3:11)

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1948, the Communists began a blockade of the city of Berlin, halting Allied land traffic between the isolated city and West Germany.

On this date:

In 1497, the first recorded discovery of the mainland of North America occurred as the explorer John Cabot sighted land between Halifax and southern Labrador.

In 1520, the Spanish conqueror of Mexico, Hernando Cortez, entered Mexico City.

In 1793, the first republican constitution in France was adopted.

In 1940, in World War II, the French government of Marshal Petain signed an armistice with Italy.

In 1942, the Dutch royal family, exiled by war, arrived in the United States to establish temporary residence.

In 1956, Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser was elected President of Egypt.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin paid a visit to Niagara Falls.

Five years ago: A young hijacker who commandeered a jetliner bailed out over Indiana with $500,000 in ransom money. He was never heard from again.

One year ago: The Supreme Court, in what was considered a landmark ruling, struck down laws that extended Federal minimum wage and maximum hour provisions to 3½ million state employes.

Thought for today: There is no substitute for character and there is no rule about where you find it. — Attorney Louis Nizer.

One usually does not know the friends that he has until he needs them.

We wish to sincerely thank all of our friends for your kindness and generosity, for your comforting words, the beautiful flowers and food.

A special thank you to Bro. Cecil Adams, Bro. Larry Rice, Mel and Vicki Redman, the pallbearers and O'Guinn Funeral Home. We needed you, you were there and we thank you.

BE READY FOR RETIREMENT
You don't need to be told that you can't get along on Social Security or other pension payments alone when the time comes for you to retire. The thing to do now is to prepare for the future. A comfortable home in the country, all paid for, ready for yourself and family, will make your income go around. A nice garden, a few chickens, a cow, and perhaps a pig or two make your dollars go farther. They add zest to life and increase your feeling of security.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOMEOWNERS
HOW MUCH IS YOUR HOME WORTH?

You probably remember very well what you paid for it. That's the first thing most folks think of ... what it COST THEM.

But, unless you bought it only recently, the purchase price is only one indication of its true worth today ... and not a very good one, at that.

Conditions change. Neighborhoods improve - or deteriorate. Alterations and improvements in the house affect its value. Dozens of considerations enter into an intelligent appraisal, making this almost a science in itself.

Appraising is a specialty of ours. If you would like to know what your home is REALLY worth today, pick up your phone and call us.

Careful shoppers can save 10-15 per cent on food bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1953, an undergraduate at the University of Pittsburgh, Hans Biesdorf, roamed local supermarkets seeking to determine the savings he might obtain by shopping in a businesslike way.

His aim, as he recalls it, was to apply the same caution, the same discernment in buying food as a professional purchaser for U.S. Steel might use in buying products for that concern.

That was before the consumer movement when, more so than today, it was a case of the naive, amateur buyer against the sophisticated, professional seller. But according to the term paper he wrote, big savings could be obtained.

Today, Hans Biesdorf, professor and economist, still roams the aisles. He believes that someone with no extraordinary expertise to begin with can cut a family food bill by 10 to 15 per cent, saving thousands of dollars in a lifetime.

Really? "Of course, no problem." His reply was peremptory, its authority founded in the facts. Since coming from West Germany in 1950 he has recorded, examined and examined again the price of all his purchases.

"Everything we (he and his wife) ever bought, it went into my records," he said. "If you don't keep records you cannot learn."

Millions have learned from Biesdorf and his associates presently or once at Cornell University. He has appeared on or written scores of radio and television shows. He supplied much fodder for the consumer movement.

In 1968 he and his associates wrote "Be A Better Shopper — Buying in Supermarkets," a home study kit. Some 43,000 orders were received, and a related slide program has been used in 200 high schools here and abroad.

Now a new edition of the kit and slide program has been completed to include developments since then, such as unit pricing, raincheck policy, nutrition labels and the Universal Product Code.

(For the kit, checks for $2.50, payable to Cornell University, should be sent to Better Shopper, Box 191, Dept. N-1, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.)

Searchers find discarded jacket, shirt

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Searchers found a newly-discarded shirt and jacket today in a sweep of a rugged area near here where a man thought to be the killer of three Girl Scouts was believed to be hiding.

Meanwhile, searchers expanded the 10-square mile perimeter of the sweep as fears mounted a man seen in the area Thursday might have slipped out during the night.

State police, including sharpshooters, along with other law enforcement officials, continued the search south of an area where a running man was spotted by a farmer Thursday afternoon.

Officials said the man could have been Gene Leroy Hart, a 33-year-old fugitive charged Thursday with thcee counts of murder in the slayings.

The hilly area is near Skunk Mountain, just three miles from the camp where three Girl Scouts were sexually molested and dragged from their tent June 13.

"If he gets into that area, there's no section lines for five miles," said Doug Littlefield, an area resident for 25 years. "You can't hardly block those woods...that a man can't get right past you just a couple of feet away."

More than 150 volunteers and a police aircraft were also involved in the search as helicopters and tracking dogs were kept at the ready.

The brown fatigue-type jacket and T-shirt were found hours after the search began at 6 a.m. Officials speculated the items could have been taken in burglaries reported in the area following the slayings, but that connection had not been made.

Lt. Kenneth Van Hoy, state police public information officer, said one of the tracking dogs being used in the search returned with wounds which appeared to have been inflicted by someone wielding a branch or small club. There was speculation the dog could have confronted the man being sought and been beaten.

The man spotted running across an open field Thursday was reportedly carrying two weapons, police said. Mayes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver said the weapons could have been a .20-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle taken from a farmhouse in the area a few days ago.

Searchers caught two glimpses of a running figure, but the search was called off at about 10 p.m.

Weaver told volunteers in a 6 a.m. briefing to form lines one to three miles in width, and be on the lookout for any fresh evidence of living sites.

"Don't only look for this, but watch those trees," Weaver said. "He will damn sure climb a tree and let you walk under him."

Weaver warned searchers that the man they were looking for could be armed and dangerous.

Mayes County Dist. Atty. Sid Wise emphasized to searchers that they leave any potential evidence for technicians to process.

About the same time the man was sighted Thursday, Wise was filing three charges of first-degree murder against Hart, 33, a convicted rapist and kidnaper who has been at large since he escaped from the county jail in 1973.

Hart was convicted of the rape of a Tulsa woman shortly before he broke out of the County jail at nearby Pryor in 1973. He has remained at large.

Tattered photographs of three women found near the death scene prtvided the break in the case after authorities linked them to Hart, who has pending sentences for rape, two counts of kidnaping and four counts of first-degree burglary.

Hart's name had surfaced earlier and the decision to issue a warrant came after it was reported he may have developed the photographs of the women.

Laetrile will soon receive human tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute, bowing to public pressure, will test the controversial substance Laetrile on cancer patients who have exhausted all other hope.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, the acting director of the cancer institute, said Thursday the fact that the experiments will be conducted does not "change our opinion that Laetrile is not effective" in the treatment of cancer.

Proponents say Laetrile is a cancer remedy. Its opponents say it has no medicinal value.

"We have reconsidered our position because of a lot of factors, and one of them is societal pressures," Newell told a House government operations subcommittee conducting hearings into the government's war against cancer.

Newell also said the tests are being undertaken because of the number of states that have legalized Laetrile or are considering it, in spite of the federal attitude toward the substance.

Laetrile, a derivative of apricot pits, has been legalized in 11 states but the Food and Drug Administration bans it for interstate sales on the grounds that it is useless in cancer treatment.

Newell said the Laetrile will be administered in cases where patients had been given all the best known medical treatment to no avail.

Dr. Saul Shepartz, a cancer institute scientist, said the tests would be conducted on "a couple of hundred" terminally ill cancer patients and that the program should begin in about three months.

The institute said results of the test would be known in about a year.

Newell said patients involved in the test will be given Laetrile in conjunction with other medicationand that no patients will receive only Laetrile.

Newell said one group will receive Laetrile along with the standard treatment and the other group of patients will be given the standard treatment and dummy pills or injections that they would think was Laetrile. He said patients would not know whether they were in the Laetrile group or in the group receiving dummy medication.

Stolen truck is recovered

A three-quarter ton four-wheel drive army truck stolen Monday or Tuesday from behind the Northeast Fire Station was recovered at 1 p.m. Thursday about two blocks from where it was taken.

The truck was found by Scott County Civil Defense Director Gleen Greene and volunteer fireman David Shain near the intersection of Dye and Lillian streets. It was parked on property owned by Glaus Sanitation.

The $3,700 army green truck is being loaned to the county civil defense unit under the federal surplus property program.

Sikeston woman injured

Ethel Allen, 66, of 205 Bowman St., escaped serious injury, this morning when the car she was driving was struck by a passing tractor- trailer truck, as she was attempting to turn left off of Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston. Driver of the truck, Kevin Carbiener, 22, of North Liberty, Ind., was cited for improper passing, according to the highway patrol. Court rules some state aid to parochial schools is okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may spend tax dollars to provide parochial school pupils with books and certain educational services but cannot finance field trips or lend parochial schools equipment such as maps and audio-visual aids, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In four separate opinions on a case from Ohio, the court said some forms of state aid to pupils in parochial schools do not violate the Constitution's requirement for separtion of church and state.

The decision appeared to be a partial victory for a group of Ohio taxpayers who had challenged the Ohio law as an unconstitutional establishment of religion and a partial victory for state officials who insisted the law was valid.

Legislation passed by the Ohio Legislature in 1975 "lends" up to $88 million worth of materials and services over the next two years to students in private schools, most of them run by religious organizations.

The decision seems to give states a limited way to circumvent the Supreme Court's past decisions outlawying the use of taxpayer dollars for most forms of aid to private schools.

Specifically, the court approved these forms of state aid to parochial students:

—Diagnostic speech and hearing services conducted on parochial school grounds.

—Therapeutic, guidance and remedial services at sites lacking the "pervasively sectarian atmosphere of the church-related schools."

The court would not allow, however, these forms of aid:

—The loan of equipment to students, an action the court said "inescapably had the primary effect of providing a direct and substantial advancement of the sectarian enterprise."

Ohio officials had hoped to get around a previous Supreme Court ruling that banned states from giving educational equipment to parochial schools or their students by "loaning" it. The court said that would not be allowed because the equipment could be used for religious purposes.

—Money or transportation aid for field trips, because the parochial schools and not their students would control the timing and frequency of such trips. This would be, the court said, "an impermissable direct aid to sectarian education."

Listing their separate reasons in 65 pages of opinions, the nine justices split five different ways on the constitutionality of such aid.

A majority of six justices ruled that textbook loans and academic testing are allowed by the Constitution. Justices William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

The court voted 8-1, with only Brennan opposed, that aid for diagnostic testing is allowed, and split 7-2, with Brennan and Marshall dissenting, in deciding that aid for therapy off parochial school grounds is permissible.

Another 6-3 split occurred when the justices voted that the lending of equipment such as maps and charts is unconstitutional. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented.

On field trips, Powell joined those three members of the court in dissent. A five-member majority ruled that aid for field trips was unconstitutional also.

Opponents of the Ohio law had argued that it attempts to avoid the restrictions of past court rulings "via a few simple strategems which produce slight technical differences in the wording of a law but little meaningful change from the results already prohibited."

Ohio Atty. Gen. William J. Brown defended the law, arguing that it did not cause excessive governmental entanglement with religion and had the secular, non-religious purpose of helping schoolchildren.

In 1975, in a Pennsylvania case, the Supreme Court struck down a state law letting tax monies be spent for speech and hearing therapy provided parochial students on the grounds of their schools.

Today's decision means that such aid can be made available by the state if the therapists meet and work with the children off school grounds in a "nonsecular" atmosphere.

JEFFERSON CITY — State legislators refused to accept responsibility for the administration of the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act, by failing to enact Missouri's Safe Drinking Water Act, SB-285.

Environmental Protection Agency spokeswoman Darby Collins said this failure to enact the legislation forces the federal government to administer the program, which could mean more stringent requirements than state measures would have had.

More than 1,300 community water supplies and an undetermined number of noncommunity water supplies serving hotels, motels, service stations and other public facilities, will come under the requirements of the act.

The Act provides for monitoring of bacteriological quality, inorganic chemicals, organic chemicals, radiological quality and certain physical criteria and other considerations.

Violations of these quality standards require notice to the public that explains when the standard was violated, the public health significance of the violations and what corrective measures will be taken. The act also provides for both civil and criminal penalties if the quality requirements and procedures defined within the act are not met.

EPA will open a water supply office in Jefferson City for purpose of implementation of the Safe Drinking Water Act. Earl V. Porter has been named project officer to head the field office. He is a registered professional engineer and a native Missourian. Porter graduated from the University of Missouri at Rolla and served as district engineer for the Missouri Division of Health at Macon before joining the Federal government's Public Health Service. He has served the past two years in the engineering branch of the EPA's Water Division in Kansas City.

Minor injuries in accident

Ethel Allen, 66, of 205 Bowman St. received minor injuries in a car-truck accident at 8:15 a.m. today on Highway 60 three miles west of town.

New law has impact on AFDC program

A bill passed by the General Assembly and signed into law by the governor has impact on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, according to Robert F. Widener, county director of Scott County Division of Family Services.

The bill which carries an emergency clause to become effective on July 1, places the state of Missouri in conformity with federal requirements for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The new law requires the establishment of a single and separate agency within the Division of Family Services to identify and locate absent parents and to enforce child support obligations.

The intent is to place the obligation of supporting children on the parents rather than the taxpayer, Widener said. The division will enter into cooperative agreements with counties to enforce and collect child support. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost of this service and, in addition, counties will receive an incentive payment for providing the service. It is required that the service of the agency by available to families not receiving AFDC as well as those receiving AFDC.

Also included in the new law is a major change in the method of payment for families eligible for AFDC. Current law stipulates a maximum grant system by family size. The new provisions will change this to a percentage of need payment plan. The division wilp take the highest per cent of the need standard, as determined by AFDC appropriations, subtract the countable income, and the balance is the amount of grant. Implementation of the new payment method of 65 per cent of need in Scott County will result in closing approximately 97 Aid to Families with Dependent Children cases, decreasing abou abot about 333 AFDC grants and increasing approximately 517 AFDC grants.

Widener said, "The maximum grant system helps the family with the most income--the percentage of need system helps the family with the least income. We believe the percentage of need payment plan is the most equitable for AFDC families." All payments wilp change effective in July and all persons presently receiving AFDC will be notified by letter of the effect of the new law.

After the percentage of need system is implemented, it will be necessary to review all food stamp cases in which there are persons receiving AFDC. Those persons who AFDC payments are decreased or closed, may be eligible for food stamps at a lower purchase requirement. Those families in which the AFDC payment is increased, may have to pay a slightly higher amount for their food stamps. These families will also be notified by letter and this change will be effective Aug. 1.

If anyone has questions or believes the AFDC payment or the food stamp purchase requirement is incorrect, he or she may contact the county Division of Family Services, Widener said.

UTILITY RATES AND RATIOS

High electric utility rates may often be a case of too many chiefs and not enough Indians.

The fewer the number of commissioners on a public utilities commission and the larger its staff, the more effective the commission is in regulating the cost of electricity to consumers, says a Cleveland State University political scientist.

Assistant professor Thomas M. Pelsoci bases that conclusion on a statistical study of 49 state regulatory agencies.

While factors such as the cost of fuel and labor have a great influence on rates in any given area, he found that "the best way to reduce electricity rates, at least from my study, is to reduce the number of commissioners and add staff."

A sizable staff is needed to check complicated accounts and records on which rates are based, he says. But the more commissioners there are, "the more political careers are involved. They tend to displace staff recommendations and make decisions based on other considerations."

Pelsoci's study also disputes the notion that the popular election of utilities commissioners leads to lower rates. On the contrary, he found that those states with elected commissioners have higher rates than those with appointed commissioners.

The reason, he theorizes, is that elected commissioners are more responsive to the utility industries than the public because of campaign contributions from the industries.

RPO CANCELLED

Railroad buffs can mark down the end of another era. The last remaining Railway Post Office (RPO) will make its final run between New York and Washington, D.C., on June 30.

The New York - Washington RPO, involving two four-car trains on which mail is sorted, has been the Post Service's solitary Railway Post Office since 1972. It began operating on October 15, 1864, five months after the RPO system was inaugurated between Chicago and Clinton, Iowa.

At one time, shortly after World War II, there were 1,500 RPOs crisscrossing the country, with 30,000 men working in more than 4,000 individual RPO cars.

The decline of the RPOs began in the late 1930s, but was delayed when railroad traffic increased during the war. The really sharp decline began in the 1950s, when the railroads began discontinuing passenger service.

Mail will continue to be transported between Washington and New York by rail, as well as by truck and plane, but all sorting and processing will take place in originating and destination post offices.

For the Good Of The Neighborhoods

As a good cause, preserving neighborhoods has come to rank right up there with protecting families, conserving energy and promoting grassroots government. Thus when Congress recently passed a study-commission law called the "National Neighborhood Policy Act," nobody quarreled with the premise that "existing city neighborhoods are a national resource to be conserved and revitalized wherever possible."

That language is worth some attention, though. To start with, it reflects a major change in urban politics and policies, away from massive public redevelopment and the concentration of private resources in rich and growing areas. Instead, the "neighborhoods" approach emphasizes non-disruption, social stability, attention to the working class and grass-roots organization.

Beyond that, however, key terms are largely undefined. What is a "neighborhood"? How can a cohesive community-not just a place-be "conserved" and "revitalized"? What's "possible"? The answers are likely to differ in Washington, Cincinnati and Baltimore. That's not a defect. On the contrary, it is a major reason the "neighborhoods movement" has come to encompass so much.

The localism and diversity in all of this are, ironically, the elements most endangered by success. Now there is to be a "national neighborhoods policy." And with that, if things follow the normal course, will come federal funds and definitions and the rest, gradually smothering the creativity and citizens' initiatives on which the whole idea was founded.

Fortunately, many "neighborhooods" advocates see the danger. They remember all too well what happened to community action and how the modelcities program was suffocated by its own intricacy. They seem to recognize, too, that no national agency can prescribe specific programs for every neighborhood in the land.

Thus the new law sets up a study commission, composed primarily of local activists, to spend one year and $1,000.000 studying the whole field and shaping recommendations, primarily on financing and taxing policies for existing residential areas. Some good ideas may come out of this. More important, it gives everybody some time to think about how, or indeed whether, federal programs can foster neighborhood action without trampling the grass-roots.

IT SHOULD BE NATIONWIDE

Columbia is the first town or city in Missouri to approve a city law that requires a 5-cent deposit on all non-returnable (throwaway) bottles, cans or other containers sold in Columbia. Its people did so in the hope that it would cut down on littering its streets and yard.

Oregon has tried a similar law except that it prohibits the sale of non-returnables in the entire state. It is working there, it would work anywhere. It has cut down on costs of picking up the litter. It has resulted in the saving and recycling and re-use of tons of vital materials of which the world is running short. It has helped keep Oregon clean and beautiful.

Prohibition of non-returnable bottles and cans should be nation-wide. Labor unions are against it, saying it will result in the loss of many jobs in plants that manufacture non-returnable containers. But the facts are that all these jobs would be more than replaced by jobs in manufacturing more returnable containers and in plants that do the recycling.

Our nation, and in many cases, the world, is running out of many basic materials. Here is one way to save them and at the same time save money for the taxpayers, and help to keep America beautiful.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

JURIES CAN DECIDE OBSCENITY

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The U.S. Supreme Court has finally come around to the concusion reached by the late Sen. Everett Dirksen and recommended in the last article he wrote before he died, namely, that the decision as to what is and what is not obscene should be made by juries rather than by judges.

In upholding the conviction of an Iowa smut peddler, Justice Harry Blackman stated the court's position like this: "Contemporary community standards must be applied by juries in accordance with their own understanding of the tolerance of the average person in their community."

The state law, according to the court in a May decision, is a factor to be brought to the jury's attention, but it is not conclusive.

Recently, the Supreme Court reaffirmed this policy by upholding an Illinois obscenity law which had been challenged as being unconstitutionally vague. Hereafter, a pornographer cannot escape prosecution just because he is more imaginative than the lawmakers in specifically describing sexual acts.

At least since the landmark Roth decision of 1957, it has been the law of our land that obscenity is not protected by the First Amendment and that the test of obscenity is whether, to the average person applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interests.

The more elusive question, however, remained: What are contemporary community standards?

In the "Fanny Hill" case of 1966, the court ruled that a book cannot be proscribed unless it is "utterly" without redeeming social value. Since under this rule even a modicum of social value would suffice, the court would use a microscope to find some modicum and then substitute the court's opinion for the jury finding. When prostitute Fanny Hill got married in the last few pages, that provided the "social value" to excuse a whole book of pornography.

While Justice Potter Stewart once said that he knows obscenity when he sees it, the other justices did not find obscenity so easy to define.

Fanny Hill ushered in a seven-year period during which the Supreme Court was constantly second-guessing juries as to whether or not material was obscene.

Finally in the 1973 Miller case, Chief Justice Warren Burger let down the anchor of stability by enunciating a three-point test for obscenity based on community standards: (1) whether the average person would find that the work, taken as a whole, appeals to the prurient interest, (2) whether the work depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual conduct specifically defined by state law, and (3) whether the work, taken as a whole, lacks serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

Specifically opting for community rather than national standards, Justice Burger ruled: "It is neither realistic nor constitutionally sound to read the First Amendment as requiring that the people of Maine or Mississippi accept public depiction of conduct found tolerable in Las Vegas or New York City." The mere fact that juries may reach different conclusions does not mean that constitutional rights are abridged.

Even so, the Miller case did not go all the way toward the acceptance of juries as the final arbiter of community standards. The following year, in Jenkins v. Georgia, the court again substituted its judgment forthat of the jury's.

The purpose of the legislation proposed by Sen. Dirksen in his November 1969 Reader's Digest article was to return to juries their right to make the final determination as to whether a book, magazine or movie is obscene. It appears that the latest two obscenity decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court have done precisely that.

Inside Labor

Think Tank Fish:

Auto Union Chiefs begin planning final drive for '79 Four-Day Week Contract

WASHINGTON— Out of the think tank into which the veteran "new" leaders of the United Auto Workers (UAW) will submerge themselves for a week late in August, they hope to emerge with some new working life styles.

He'll "isolate" the union's international executive board that week in Toronto, Canada. They'll ask themselves in long day sessions -- where do we go from here, what new social paths are there to slash through, what hasn't the labor movement yet sought and won. This may sound corny. For many others maybe. But not for the latter-day Reutherites who long ago invented the Cost of Living Adjustment (uncapped COLA) for example – which today is labor's biggest money winner.

They're certain to take the new Fraser administration's first long step towards an actual "four day" work week.

This auto union never has been better organized, more skillfully managed or more heavily financially equipped to drive in any socio-economic direction it desires. This leadership smashed onto the industrial front in the '30s. They were young, hard-driving, plant-seizing, marching, squad-flying men. Today, in their 60s, they know that by union mandate they must walk off stage during the beginning of the '80s. But they don't plan to go quietly. Less smashingly. But not quietly.

Their 60-year-old president, Doug Fraser, who must retire at 65, has set the mood by targeting in on the four-day work week. Bargaining for that during the 1979 contract negotiations with the Big Three auto manufacturers will be "inevitable," he told his colleagues. If the union wins, as it always has on social objectives as well as wages, this will affect some 850,000 auto and agricultural implement workers.

The shorter work week will flash fire from auto to steel and other mass industries in a few years. It always has.

So 1979 will be the time frame for the industrial Armageddon. The union wants the equivalent of four days' work for five days' pay– in some fashion. For starters, the days needn't be in sequence. And they may include holidays at premium pay.

But in the end the union officials say, the work week will be four days long. I guess the slogan will be -- towards a new America. Sort of a mod American version of European Social Democracy for which some labor chiefs are organizing these days. Quietly, philosophically and intellectually -- but organizing none the less for some time--distant British brand of "Democratic Socialism."

But this leapfrogs the immediate story. Vital for a long view of 1979 is industry's distinct distaste for the four-day work week. For a score of technocratic and philosophic reasons.

So labor and management, now arguing mostly about Doug Fraser's support of air bags and automatic seat belts for new cars, really will stare at each other in computerized array like olden armored Scottish and English armies about to do battle.

And the UAW comes well equipped for the struggle at contract renegotiation time in September 1979. It will have some $350 million in its "Strike Insurance Fund." Perhaps more if there aren't intervening walkouts which now don't even flyspeck the horizon.

At this moment the UAW has a net worth of over $250 million. As of March 1, the union's general funds were $75.7 million. And spouting. This is the operating money of the union "from which the bulk of the cost of funning the UAW is allocated," according to its own records.

There are few other clues to Doug Fraser's think-tank agenda. These past few weeks he's been doing what comes natural when a star is born. He has been on the national TV tube on Sunday morning. He has sat with editorial boards of some newspapers to talk in prescient terms of where the modern world is going -- and why he believes the mentally alert, but not so physically well George Meany (83 years old on Aug. 16) should retire.

He has declared himself on car emissions and talked gas guzzling with President Carter. He believes that the public should have the option of purchaisng a car in which the seat belt automatically clamps down on a passenger when the auto door shuts. He has dropped in on the AFL-CIO's famed 16th Street national labor center (as it's now being called) to discuss merging with the federation.

Like all bright union chiefs, he consults with other executive cadres first before sounding off publicly.

Fraser is lobbying across the land among his regional and local UAW units urging them to vote for national – the key word -- affiliation with the AFL-CIO. Into such a coalition he can lead more than 1.5 million members during the mother federation's biennial convention on Dec. 8 in Los Angeles. The UAW is second in size only to the Teamsters.

And already he can influence some of the biggest of AFL-CIO mass unions and some of the smallest. Such as Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers to which the UAW has contributed $1.1 million in the past three years. And is still contributing weekly.

So as the think tankers meditate late in August so should the vast forces of the American labor movement. New life styles, or at the very least new work-day fashions, may be fished out of those skull sessions. Watch it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sen. Eastland Is Backing A Questionalble Protege

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- As Senate Judiciary Chairman, owlish, old Jim Eastland has been an uncompromising spokesman for law and order. He would be expected, therefore, to demand the prosecution of an alleged lawbreaker, not to recommend him for high office.

Yet the 72-year-old curmudgeon from Mississippi has urged the White House to consider Kenneth Dupuy for a top energy post. It should be no secret, since we reported it in more than 900 newspapers last September, that Dupuy is under investigation for alleged bribery, sexual impropriety and misuse of federal funds.

The investigation forced Dupuy to resign as director of the Federal Energy Administration's regional office in Atlanta. The Justice Dept., meanwhile, has reviewed the case and has sent it back to the FEA for further investigation. FEA sources tell us it has been assigned "top priority."

Yet the White House sent Dupuy to the FEA for an interview. This is normally a clear signal of White House support. It now looks as if he won't get an appointment. But the White House, apparently, tried to install him as one of the bosses of the agency that is investigating him.

Of course, the White House was under pressure from Eastland to restore Dupuy to power. The round-faced, close-mouthed Mississippi senator doesn't often raise his voice. But when he removes the dead cigar butt from his mouth and offers his views, the high muckamucks in Washington usually listen. For he has the power to kill laws, stall appointments and bog down the Senate.

A spokesman for Eastland told our associate, Marc Smolonsky, that Dupuy "did a good job" running the Atlanta office. Federal investigators, however, disagree. As we reported last September, Dupuy is under investigation for allegedly giving extra fuel allocations to gasoline distributors in return for gratuities.

Investigators established that Dupuy frequently used the apartment of William Corey, a gasoline and diesel fuel distributor, for trysts with a girl friend. At about the same time, Corey's firm, U.S. Transport, Inc., had its gas and diesel fuel allocations raised by Dupuy's office. Some of the allocations, according to sources close to the case, were awarded to gas stations and truck stops that existed only on paper.

This isn't the first time Dupuy has been in trouble. In 1975, he was reprimanded for accepting transportation from an oil company to attend its Florida convention, where he stayed two days at the firm's expense.

He was also accused of misusing federal funds. He and his secretary often junketed together outside his region. A number of times he traveled to his Mexia, Tex., ranch allegedly at government expense.

We have been unable to locate Dupuy. But his attorney previously said there was "not anything to" the bribe allegations. The lawyer admitted his client had used Corey's apartment but insisted no favors had been given Corey in return.

Dupuy was not regional administrator, the attorney claimed, when the higher fuel allocations were awarded Corey. He added that the travel abuse charges against Dupuy were "piddly junk," and that he was cleared of them.

Florida Sequel: More than a year ago, we sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to Florida to investigate the working conditions of the migrant stoop laborers. Posing as a young drifter, he was recruited out of a flophouse in Immokolee to work on the nearby corporate farm of A. Duda and Sons.

He hunched over rows of tomatoes with the other workers, picking them for a penny a pound. The days were long, the sun hot, the fields infested with snakes. Pesticides on the tomato vines caused some workers to break out with painful rashes.

The workers lived in battered trailers, which were subdivided into tiny compartments. Bernton shared a cubicle, streaked with grime and stinking of urine, with another worker. They slept on filthy mattresses. The camp was located on a barren, dusty, wind-whipped stretch of sand.

At the end of each week, the workers were paid barely enough to cover the cost of their overpriced meals and the wine they gulped down at the end of the day to dull their aches and pains. Some workers actually wound up owing their crewleader more than they had earned in the fields.

Since we published these reports, much has happened. The labor camp has been replaced by a new, $500,000 facility with modern trailers on a grassy site. A day care center has been added for the workers' children.

The Labor Dept., confirming our account, found that the Duda camp mess halls were overcharging the impoverished workers for their meals. The corporate farm may now be forced to refund the huge overcharges.

The crewleader, who enforced his authority with a vicious dog, was fired. The Labor Dept. is after him for alleged federal violations.

Finally, a wave of discontent swept through the Immokolee area, and some of the migrant workers organized a strike against the big growers. But the strike was broken by a brutal frost, which destroyed the winter vegetable crop. With no work to strike against, the migrants were forced to go on the public dole.

Today's news in brief

Judge blocks Tris ban

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A federal judge has blocked the nationwide ban on Tris, the flame-retardant and possible cancer-causing chemical used primarily in children's sleepwear.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Chapman on Thursday nullified the Federal Consumer Products Safety Commission's ban, saying the commission acted illegally in implementing the ban because it failed to follow procedural safeguards enacted by Congress.

He also said the agency's data on Tris was "unverified, uninterpreted and uncertain."

His 36-page ruling prevents the commission from enforcing the ban until proper procedure is followed.

There was no immediate comment from the commission on the judge's ruling.

On April 8 the commission banned the use of Tris and ordered manufacturers of Tristreated fabrics to repurchase their products to get them off the market. The commission said Tris may cause cancer, based on its interpretation of data from the National Cancer Institute.

Tonry adopts 'Rocky' role

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Congressman Richard Tonry, who resigned his U.S. House seat in an election fraud scandal, pictures himself as a "Rocky" type figure in his fight to win a Democratic primary and regain his post. Tonry, who uses as his campaign theme song music from the prizefighter movie "Rocky," says, "The more they push me, the madder I get," he says. "The madder I get, the more I fight. And the more I fight, the more I win."

Soviet computer sale refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is refusing to let the Control Data Corp. sell a $13 million computer system to the Soviet Union, despite the Russians' contention that its only use would be forecasting the weather. The administration said the deal was prohibited because the Cyber 76 computer was so elaborate that the Soviets could have used it for warfare.

Foreign aid reversal sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House pased a $6.7 billion foreign aid appropriations bill, banning U.S. aid or trade with Cuba and blocking aid to six other nations. Now President Carter and Democratic leaders are looking to the Senate to overturn the measure. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell says the bill would "damage the ability of this country to pursue our national interests by peaceful means," but did not say whether Carter would veto it if it remained in its present form.

IRS says Agnew owes on taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says Spiro T. Agnew failed to report almost $27,000 in income in 1973, the year he resigned as vice president of the United States and pleaded no contest to a felony count of income tax evasion. The IRS is asking Agnew to pay $13,966 in back taxes and penalties on the alleged ureported income.

Begin vows to hold West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin says his new Israeli government will never give up all of the West Bank or allow a Palestinian state to be formed there and in the Gaza Strip. To do so would put "every city and home in Israel" in Arab artillery sights, Begin told the World Zionist Congress Thursday.

New hunger strike begins

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Eight Chileans began a hunger strike at the Geneva headquarters of the International Red Cross Thursday as 26 Chileans ended a 10-day fast at a United Nations office in Santiago and five American sympathizers ended a six-day sit-in at a U.N. office in Washington. The Geneva demonstrators are demanding a U.N. investigation into the whereabouts of 2,500 persons they claim have disappeared since a military junta overthrew Chile's Marxist government in 1973.

Skateboards boon for doctors

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The skateboarding fad has made some people a lot of money, but those getting the biggest break may be doctors.

Dr. Kip Parsons, an orthopedist at Childrens Mercy Hospital, says between 30 and 40 young skateboarders have been treated for broken bones at the hospital this summer. Last year, there were six.

"Statistically that's a significant number when taking other forms of childhood play into consideration," Parsons said.

The doctor said the accidents have been divided equally between boys and girls, adding that the most common type of break is the wrist or forearm.

"Skateboards have taken their fair toll so far this summer," he said.

The worst may yet be to come, however.

Thousands of Kansas City students are still in school because of spring teachers' strike. They will be out of the classrooms — and on the sidewalks — next month.

34 telecopiers authorized

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Each member of the Missouri Senate has been authorized to purchase a telecopier machine under a plan that could cost the state more than $50,000.

But Ron Kirchoff, the Senate administrator, said only three senators asked for the machines used to transit written information by telephone. The machines cost about $1,500 each.

Authority for the senators to purchase a telecopier if they wanted was given by the Senate Accounts Committee in the final days of the recent legislative session.

Sen. Paul Bradshaw, RSpringfield, had initially asked the panel, which controls Senate expenditures, for authority to purchase a telecopier for himself. The committee gave its approval and extended the option to the other 33 Senate members.

According to Kirchoff, Republican Sens. Joe Frappier of St. Charles and George Murray of Creve Coeur are the other two lawmakers asking for the machines. Kirchoff said a fourth machine has also been ordered for the Senate's central administration.

WASHINGTON (AP) — What well-known politician claims he took a $600 income tax exemption for toothpaste?

None other than President Carter, who made his taxes and famous toothy grin the butt of his own jokes Thursday night at a New York fundraising dinner for Democrats.

The question of taxes takes on a more serious tone today, when the White House releases the President's twice-delayed 1976 income tax returns.

Carter received a 60-day extension beyond the April 15 income tax filing deadline earlier this year. When the 60 days expired, he received a second extension from the Internal Revenue Service.

The Carters paid $26,000 in estimated taxes during 1976. One of the questions delaying the filing reportedly dealt with whether royalties from Carter's book, "Why Not the Best?" should be treated as income in 1976 or 1977.

The answer to that question could determine whether the President receives a refund or owes more money.

CIRCUIT COURT

BLOOMFIELD — Walter Dewitt Burns, charged with capital murder, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder in Stoddard County Circuit Court last week before Judge Flake McHaney.

The charge stems from the shooting death of Jackie Long on Feb. 9, 1977 in Dunklin County and is a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Burns was sentenced to custody of state departmnt of corrections for 25 yars.

Also last week in the Dunklin County Circuit Court, Burns pleaded guilty to a charge of assault on C. R. Mayberry on April 24, 1976.

McHaney sentenced burns to 10 years in custody of the State Department of Corrections, to run concurrently with the first sentence.

Apples Apples

In late April and early May a large, mature apple tree will produce between 50,000 and 100,000 blossoms, in clusters of five or six. If all the blossoms were to set fruit, the tree would produce as many as 800 bushels of small apples. Usually a mere 2 to 5 per cent of the apple blossoms set fruit that develops into maturity, yielding 15 to 30 bushels of apples.

Attempt to raise gas tax seeks to 'educate' voters

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - The chairman of the petition campaign to raise Missouri's gasoline tax three cents a gallon says his group feels if the state's voters can be "educated" they will support the need for a gas tax increase.

But one critic of the proposal has labeled it "extremist" and said the plan probably would fare no better than President Carter's stand-by fuel tax plan.

Burleigh Arnold, a Jefferson City businessman, is chairman of the statewide petition drive to raise Missouri's present 7-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax to 10 cents. The initiative also would change the formula for allocating money from the gas tax to give counties 15 per cent of all motor fuel tax funds, instead of the current 5 per cent share.

The petition effort is being spearheaded by the Missouri Transportation and Development Council and is supported by the highway constuction lobby. If passed, it would generate more road repair and construction.

Arnold concedes a gasoline tax increase probably is not popular with voters, but he said if Missourians could be "educated" about the need for added money to improve the state's road system, they would vote for the tax hike.

"We are optimistic, despite all the controversy over the gasoline tax increases," Arnold said.

However, John Hahn, executive director of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association which opposes the initiative, said he was confident voters would rejct the proposal.

"I think the people made it clear what they think of gasoline tax increases when Congress was considering the Carter gasoline tax increase," Hahn said.

He also pointed out that the Oil Jobbers Association has supported a 1 cent increase in the tax, but said the council's plan goes too far.

Hahn attacked the initiated proposal as too broad because it would raise the gas tax 3 cents and at same time change the allocation formula.

"We're opposed to it because it represents a 43 per cent increase ... and it represents a reduction in the state Highway Commission's money," Hahn said.

Presently, 89 per cent of the motor fuel tax money goes to the state, 15 per cent goes to the cities and 5 per cent to the counties The council's plan would change the formula so 70 per cent would go to the state with the remaining 30 per cent split evenly between THe cities

Arnold said so far there had been no major organized resistance to the council's petition effort.

"I think we're going to finish the gathering of the signatures in July," Arnold said, adding that the council would not have been able to collect the signatures so quickly if there was widespread resistance to the petition drive.

Arnold earlier had predicted the necessary signatures would be obtained by July 1. But John Ashford, who runs the actual petition drive operation, said organizational problems of mounting the drive were greater than first anticipated. Still, Ashford said the problems were organizational rather than because of any major resistance to the plan.

He said the council had gathered "more than 100,000 signatures"

About 110,000 signatures are required to get the measure on the ballot, although Ashford said his group planned to gather about 150,000 to make sure the petitions passed the validation process.

Arnold and Ashford said after the necessary signatures were obtained, the council would then have to convince voters of the need for the tax increase. Arnold said the state and county highway departments needed the additional $85 million the proposed amendment would raise to upgrade deteriorating dridges and roads throughout the state.

Hahn, however, said if voters realized the size of the tax hike, they would turn down the initiative.

"In some campaigns they are able to cloud the tax increase part of it," Hahn noted.

Ashford said if the petition effort was successful the initiave could be on the 1978 general election ballot, but the council hoped to get Gov. Joseph Teasdale to call a special election on it earlier.

Supporters of the plan feel their best chance for passage would be in a special election this fall, rather than in the 1978 election, where the issue could be politicized by the canadiates.

"Gov. Teasdale has said if we get the signatures he will consider calling a special election," Ashford said. "And thre is no question we will get the signatures."

The governor's press aide, Dale Amick, said Teasdale "has made no commitment on this to anybody."

Teasdale has said he would oppose any incrrase in taxes for individuals and the governor was against a similar proposal to raise the gas taxes, which were unsuccessful in the 1977 legislature.

Most Arkansas jails may not meet standards

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Most Arkansas jails probably will not meet new minimum standards when they take effect Aug. 1, according to Dean Rowell, administrator of the state Criminal Detention Facilities Board.

Rowell said, however, that the board would not take cities and counties to court to force compliance, as long as local officials were making a conscientious effort to meet the standards.

He spoke in Little Rock at a conference for municipal officials sponsored by the Arkansas Municipal League.

The Board will begin formal inspections of jails in August, and all of the state's 155 jails are to be inspected before August 1978. If local officials do not begin correcting violations within six months, the board can file a petition in circuit court asking that the jail be closed.

The standards establish health, safety and structural requirements for jails and require that a matron be on duty at jails any time there are female prisoners in custody.

Employment office to lease building

DEXTER -- The Missouri Division of Employment Security has agreed to lease a building here for the establishment of an office, but it will probably be in late July or August 1 before the transaction can be completed and the new office start operating.

The state employment office is entering into a lease agreement with Gary Dowdy, owner of the building on Sassafras Street, just south of Stoddard, which is now occupied by the district office of the Division of Family Services.

The family services office will be moved to new quarters in Dexter, on which bids are to be opened in Jefferson City Wednesday.

Once the family services office has moved to its new quarters, then the employment office can be established in the Dowdy Building.

State Rep. Gary Smith said he had been informed by state officials that the Division of Employment Security has accepted the lease agreement with Dowdy for the building. It is dated July 1, but it is expected to be late in the month, or perhaps August 1, before the deed can be completed, Smith estimated.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing newspapers, books, magazines and other second, third and fourth class items is increasing July 6, the Postal Service announced Wednesday.

The hike is the sixth in a series of annual increases scheduled when the service became a semi-independent agency.

First class letters are not affected.

Some examples of the new rates include:

—Second class rates for newspapers increase by varying amounts depending on whether they are entered by weight or by copy and according to distance. The per-piece charge outside a newspaper's home county, for example, increases from 0.8 cents to 1.1 cents. Within the county, the increase would be from 0.6 to 0.7 cents. Per-pound rates range from an increase to 6.7 cents from 6.0 cents in zones 1 and 2 to an increase to 13.5 cents from 12.5 cents in zone 8.

—The cost of mailing a book or record will increase from 25 to 30 cents for the first pound and from 10 to 11 cents for each additional pound up to seven pounds. Each pound over seven pounds will continue to cost 8 cents to mail.

—The typical weekly news magazine will now cost 6.80 cents to mail, up from 5.57 cents.

Missionary shares his experiences in Rhodesia

Richard Smith

Richard Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Linn Smith, 188 Tanner, returned recently after two years in Rhodesia while participating as a missionary journeyman for the Southern Baptist Church.

The two-year program is for students who finish college and are not 26 years old. The purpose is to build support for our missionaries and to also help those in the program to increase their spiritual needs. The program will also help gain local churches support of the missionaries and their families.

Smith is a graduate of the University of Missouri at Rolla where he received his degree in civil engineering. He first learned of the program while attending Urbana '73 at the University of Illinois. It was there that he learned of the details of the program and returned to talk to a friend at his church in Rolla to get reassurance that this was what he wanted.

He entered the program in June of 1975 and after six weeks of training in Raleigh, N.C., he prepared to depart for Angola. It was during this time, Smith recalled, that Angola was becoming very heated with terrorists and so the missionaries were pulled from Angola. Smith was then sent to Johanasburg, South Africa.

In February of 1976, he was transferred to Rhodesia, to the small village of Sanyati and remained there until his return to the states. While in Sanyati he taught missionary children in five different grades. Although his degree was not in education, his mother is a first grade teacher in the Sikeston schools and so he acquired some of her techniques.

Smith feels that all the missionaries are "cream of the crop", top-knotch people. They really are the most dedicated people that he came to know and enjoyed being with.

The school system in Rhodesia for the missionaries' children consisted of seven elementary grades and four "forms" in high school. According to Smith only ten percent of the village children get to high school.

Smith taught mostly fourth and fifth grades and used the British teaching packet to aid him and also borrowed American stories to tell for American history class. He asked his classes to memorize the 50 states and capitals, the Gettysburg Address and they observed all holidays.

Classes there would run from the end of January to mid April then break for three months and start again.

While in Sanyati, they filmed a movie to be used in the churches called "A Dream Come True." The film is the story of a young village boy's dream of going to school like his brothers and becoming a doctor.

Sanyati is 56 miles from the nearest town so to get mail and groceries, the village would send a truck in on Tuesday and Friday. "If you forgot to order bread then, you were just out of luck," Smith recalled. The truck would leave about 6 or 7 a.m. and would return around 3 or 4 p.m.

Not only did Smith teach school, but he was also responsible for helping to establish a church or similar preaching point with some of the villagers. Fearing that he would have a problem communicating with the villagers, when forming the preaching point, Smith soon learned that they too knew the English language and were anxious to be taught in such.

When asked if after pursuing his career in engineering would he return to a country as a missioniary, Smith replied that he feels it is important to share his faith. "My heart is in going back".

The one thing Smith says about being a journeyman or a missionary is that the job isn't all joys there are some heartaches, too.

He said that his parents were both happy and excited about his experience, although his father hesitated in the beginning.

When asked if he had any doubts when entering the program, Smith says that the most difficult obstacle was the thought of how it would effect his career when he would return.

Presently, Smith is relaxing and plans on looking for a job in either the St. Louis or Kansas City area. He says that he would be most happy to share his experiences with the people of Sikeston.

Dear Ann Landers

Assault victim seeks Ann for help

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago, when I was almost 14, I was sexually assaulted. That horrible nightmare is never completely out of my mind.

Whenever a guy puts his arm around me I get turned off. I just can't stand to be touched. Do you think maybe I just haven't met the right guy yet? No one knows of the terrible thing that happened to me and I'd prefer to keep it this way. Please tell me what to do. I worry a lot that my whole life is ruined.--Desperate

Dear D.: The trauma resulting from a sexual assault can create life-long problems unless something is done to help the victim overcome feelings of shame and anxietey.

You should have had counseling immediately. There are now Rape Crises Center is many cities. They offer precisely the kind of help you need.

There are other agancies that counsel psychologically disturbed people who can't pay. Contact Community Referral Service (phone book) or your county or state Mental Health Group. The Salvation Army and YWCA also provide excellent counseling services. Get going. You're two years late.

Dear Ann Landears: I'm so mad I could scream. Please print this letter for all mothers who feel they simple MUST clean the bedrooms of their grown children.

I am 20, female and pay $80 a month for room and board. When I'm not working I'm usually out. I'm not the neatest person in the world and my room does get messy but if it doesn't bother ME, why should it bother my mother? I keep telling her to keep the door closed and stay out of there. Every Sunday I clean it thoroughly.

My mother is a neurotic "Crazy Clean." She also likes to rearrange furniture. I almost broke my neck when I went to lie down where my bed used to be.

A few days ago my sister needed a pocketbook for school. I dumped the contents out of mine into a paper sack, gave it to her and got out my new one. It was late so I didn't put the paper bag in a drawer--just left it on the floor, next to my dresser.

The next day I looked for the bag and couldn't find it. I had a hunch what had happened but waited till I cooled off before I asked. Sure enough--my mother had thrown it out. "Thought it was garbage."

In that "garbage" was my address book, poems I had written, letters, receipts, reminder notes--things I'll never be able to replace.

What can I do about Crazy Lady's Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your mother is a compulsive cleaner, so telling her to stay out of your room won't help. Buy a key and use it. After the recent disaster I'll bet you won't get much flak.

Dear Ann: It's time somebody wrote and told you what great things a spanking can do for a wife who behaves like a child. I speak from experience.

My wife was 17 when we married. She couldn't cook, wouldn't clean house or sew a button on a shirt. Just spoiled rotten, she was. I decided what the little brat needed was a good old-fashioned spanking so I put her right over my knee and let her have it. All it took was twice. Now she's a great little wife. Tell 'em, Annie.--King

Dear King (Kong, maybe?): Just because you married an immature child who responded to punishment befitting a five-year-old doesn't mean your approach is right. I feel sorry for you both.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs--or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot--in moderation? Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

RICHARD SHAKARIAN
HAS MINISTERED TO 300 OF FINANCIALLY ELITE IN GENEVA & PARIS
SPECIAL GUEST ON 700 CLUB & P.T.L.
POWERFUL PHYSICAL HEALINGS

Led by the Holy Spirit in the United States and 47 nations, Richard Shakarian ministers to as many as 16,000 persons a night in great arenas to reach this generation for Christ.

He has conducted crusades in 32 American cities with 1/2 million young families in attendance. Tens of thousands answer the altar call and find Christ each year.

Unable to respond personally to invitations in 26 nations due to his heavy work schedule, Oral Roberts selected Richard and his wife, Vangie, to take his place and minister healing to the people. In addition to the tremendous healings that took place, over 10,000 persons received Jesus on that one trip.

Richard has spoken before the congressional prayer groups in Washington D.C. and has ministered to 300 of the tops in the financial world in Geneva and Paris.

Ramirez and Vilas ousted at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A pair of tennis twins from Onalaska, Wis., Tim and Tom Gullikson, have caught the imagination of the massive crowds at the centenary Wimbledon Tennis Championships this week.

Oldtimers were even mentioning the legendary tennis-playing twins, Willie and Ernie Renshaw, who dominated the fledgling Wimbledon tournaments of the 1880s when tennis was still played in long trousers and straw hats.

The Renshaws learned their tennis on an asphalt court at school, and the story is much the same for the Gulliksons, 25-year-olds who picked up most of their tennis savvy in public parks playing against each other.

Matching the masterful Mexican at his own game with finesse at the net, Gullikson took the first two sets 6-3, 6-4, lost the third 3-6 and wasted four match points in the fourth which Ramirez won 9-8 on a tiebreaker.

Ramirez, with his Mexican bandit mustache, sprayed a strained stomach muscle with painkiller between games, while Gullikson suffered cramps in the closing stages of the tight deciding set as every point drew oohs and aahs from the crowd.

After breaking in the fifth game to go 3-2, Gullikson reached 5-4 and was serving for the match. He lost another four match points before piledriving a serve which Ramirez could only hit into the net for the match.

The muscular American whooped in relief, the crowd burst into prolonged applause and Gullikson took a spare tennis ball and clouted it high over the grandstands.

Californian Billy Martin also turned in a big upset, dumping Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in straight sets. The top men's seeds, Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, posted victories as did the top women's seeds, Chris Evert and Martina Navaratilova.

After his match Gullikson explained why he kept looking up to the players' restaurant where his wife Rosemary, and his brother Tom and his wife Julie were watching and rooting for him.

"We always try to watch each other play — it helps," said an exhausted Tim after the match. He now meets Brian Fairlie of New Zealand in the third round.

Their showing in Paris and Wimbledon is the more remarkable for their late entry into world class tennis. After both graduating from North Illinois University, they became teaching tennis pros until Tim decided to try out for the pro circuit two years ago and persuaded his brother to join him. They quickly climbed up the U.S. rankings and made the Grand Prix circuit.

Ex-farm hand stings K.C.

No.

"How can your heart be full of vengeance toward the organization that drafted you, gave you a chance in life and taught you to be a winner?"

Jones was most assuredly a winner Thursday night in leading the Seattle Mariners to an 8-6 victory over the team that made him available in the expansion draft, the Kansas City Royals.

The muscular 22-year-old centerfielder collected three hits and drove in a run in the 10-inning fray that allowed the Mariners to leave town with a split of the four-game series.

Jones was one of several promising outfield prospects in the Royals organization when he was brought up during the last two months of the 1976 season.

His first major league at-bat produced an RBI single. He collected two hits and three RBI his second appearance, and later had a three-hit game as the Royals drove to the Western Division title.

"No way," Jones said Thursday night. "In the two months I was here I could see I was better than everybody they had. I knew my abilities, even if they didn't. And I'm not the kind of guy to sit on the bench either. I told them I'd come to spring training but I told them I wasn't going to sign a contract."

So advised, the Royals put him up for grabs in the expansion draft and the Mariners made him the first player taken. He's responded with 14 home runs, 46 RBI and a batting average nearing .270

"They treated me badly those two months last year," Jones said. "But I don't have any hard feelings toward the organization. They vave me a chance to play.

"It doesn't give me any special thrill to beat the Royals. I still like the team and I know it's a great organization. Most of those guys are good friends of mine. I want them to win every game they play, except when they play us."

With the game tied, 6-6, after nine, Dan Meyer lashed a double off Mark Littell and came around to score on a soft single by Craig Reynolds. Fred Patek's second error of the game allowed Bob Stinson to score the Mariners' eighth run.

It was a see-saw battle from start to finish. George Brett tripled home a run in the Kansas City first, then the Mariners tied it on the first of Skip Jutze's three RBI.

Darrell Porter's two-run homer gave the Royals a two-run lead that lasted until Jones singled home a run in the third.

In the sixth, Jutze unloaded a two-run double and scored on a sacrifice bunt to give the Mariners a 5-3 advantage.

Amos Otis then doubled home a run and tied it up on Patek's ground out.

Bill Stein's RBI single in the seventh was matched by Cookie Rojas' run-scoring single in the eighth and the game went into extra innings.

St. Louis could host Olympics in 1984

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — There are enough existing facilities in the St. Louis region to host the 1984 Olympics, according to a university study issued today.

The study by the Center for Urban and Environmental Research and Services at Southern Illinois University was written by Robert Mendelson.

The study compared seating capacity at various competition sites in St. Louis with those in Montreal, after elaborate additions were made for the 1976 Olympics held there.

"These comparisons should erase any doubt about the feasibility of an Olympiad in St. Louis — the resources are available," said Mendelson.

"Although it may appear fantastic, it is entirely possible that St. Louis could be the host for the Olympics in 1984," added Mendelson, an associate professor of earth sciences and planning.

He said Montreal was left with a debt of $1 billion because of last year's extravaganza. He said many of the Canadians' major expenditures are not necessary in St. Louis.

"Funds to construct the stadium, pools and velodrome in Montreal totaled $910 million," said Mendelson. "St. Louis already has major indoor and outdoor stadiums and diving and swimming pools. Another $100 million was spent in Montreal to construct the 1,000-apartment Olympic Village." But he says existing housing or new units in St. Louis built at a fraction of that cost could be turned over to local housing authorities after the games.

Mendelson turned over his report to St. Louis officials for possible consideration.

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

Having taken a leave of absence from the Standard for a few days for a very good reason, this reporter is now ready to return to the typewriter and offer my unsolicited opinions on a few items of interest in the sporting world.

Most Redbird fans hated to see the talente Bake McBride go (at least I did), but you've got to admit that the trade for the Phillies' Tom Underwood looks good for the Cards.

The Cardinals, even without McBride, still have one of the most deep and talented outfields in the game. Lou Brock, Jerry Mumphrey, Tony Scott, Mike Anderson and Heity Cruz can team in any combination to give the club a solid garden trio every day, without wearing out any of them. McBride, who wasn't playing much anyway and was off to a terrible start with the stick, won't be missed.

And while the team is not hurting itself by unloading the injury-prone McBride, they are definitely improving themselves by picking up the lefty hurler Underwood. Underwood, who was 10-5 as a spot starter for the Phils last year, has age on his side at 23. And, if he doesn't break into the regular starting rotation (which he probably will, since Pete Falcone is going bad and John Denny is injured again), he will provide the club with an all- important second lefthanded arm that can be helpful, as the Cardinals have found out the hard way.

Meanwhile, don't be surprised if a trade is just the thing that McBride needs to motivate him to try just a little harder and play up to his potential. But if he does, don't blame the Cards for giving up on him too soon – they were more than p patient.

There were also some pros and cons to the Doug Capilla for Rawly Eastwick swap with Cincinnati. As in all trades, we'll have to wait a while to see who got the best of it.

On the positive side, the Redbirds are getting one of the top righthanded relievers in the game in Eastwick. And they got him for a minor leaguer -- a minor leaguer with great potential, granted, but still a minor leaguer.

On the negative end of the deal, the club is obviously looking only in the short- range future in making the trade. Eastwick is unsigned, and despite Gussie Busch's statements that he expects him to agree to terms with the Cardinals, the talented reliever has bowed that he will play out his option and taken his chances in the big money free agent market.

The Cardinals know they risk they are taking. They're fools if they don't think there's a good chance that Eastwick will play out his option after this season and throw baseballs for someone else. But if Eastwick's presence in the bullpen makes the difference for the Birds down the stretch and wins the pennant for them, it will have been a good trade -- even if he does leave. If they don't win the pennant, and if Capilla turns out to be a big winner, and if Eastwick does indeed play out his option and leave the Birds, Bing Devine can write this one down in his "bum deals" column.

The "ifs" will decide it.

Duffers trophies

Over $700 in prizes, including the above trophies, will be awarded to winners in this Sunday's Sikeston Jaycee Duffers Tournament at the Sikeston Country Club. Trophies will be awarded to the first place winners in each of the five classes and also in three other special categories.

Duffers gather Sunday

The event is open to all area golfers and "duffers", and will feature five classes of competition including: Championship, A, B, C and D classes; plus a special "cheaters" class for low handicap golfers.

There will be over $700.00 in prizes awarded including trophies for first place in each class and also in three other special categories.

The Tournament will begin with a shotgun start promptly at 11:00 A.M.

Players or foursomes who have not signed up in advance should arrive at the course 45 minutes early to enter the Tournament.

The entry fee for the Tournament will be $12.00. The field will be limited to the first 120 entries. Any proceeds from the event will be used in funding Jaycee civic projects in the Sikeston area.

For information on the Tournament contact Mike Couch or Eric Piel at the Bank of Sikeston, 471-1200.

'Musican managers' game continues with Rangers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Lucchesi to Stanky to Ryan is not a famous double-play combination. It's just this week's combination of managers for the Texas Rangers.

Frank Lucchesi was fired as the Rangers' skipper Wednesday, and replaced — supposedly through 1978 — by Eddie Stanky.

The Rangers were 31-31 under Lucchesi this season, then 1-0 under Stanky after rallying to a 10-8 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night. But under Ryan, they're 0-1 after a 12-2 loss Thursday to Minnesota.

Though there has been no official announcement, it is expected that Ryan will manage the team through the end of the season. Robinson said no decision would be made until he discusses the matter with owner Brad Corbett.

Ryan was hired by the Rangers as a coach prior to this season. Before that, he coached and scouted for the Atlanta Braves from 1971-76.

Ryan last managed in 1968 in the minor leagues. Earlier speculation had him replacing Lucchesi, but Robinson said flatly at that time that Ryan would never replace Lucchesi as the Rangers' manager.

"Now we have a completely different sitation," said Robinson. "I see no reason why Connie couldn't run the ball club until such a time as we needed somebody else."

After arriving in Anaheim, Ryan said he was "just taking things as they come, I'd be guessing if I said anything now. I'll know better in four or five days.

"I think I want the job permanently," Ryan added. "It hasn't been offered to me yet. I'm going to wait a couple of days before I say much."

Stanky, 59, left for his Mobile, Ala., home from Minneapolis Thursday morning. He will return as baseball coach at the University of South Alabama, a position he held the past nine years.

Robinson said Stanky telephoned him Thursday morning to tell him he was at the airport and heading for home.

Robinson said Stanky told him he decided that he couldn't leave his family and 85-year-old father, who lives with the family in Mobile.

As far as accepting the Rangers' offer to manage the team, Stanky said upon his arrival in Mobile Thursday that "I should have known better."

Stanky said after Wednesday night's game he was "lonesome and homesick," and that he enjoyed his brief return to pro baseball and would have stayed "if I didn't have to go to my room alone each night."

Godwin still alive in Mo-Am.

And, conveniently enough, the current site happens to be the Missouri State Amateur Golf Championship at the Country Club of Missouri.

Barnes, a Kansas City resident, knocked off Barry Brown of St. Louis, 2 and 1, Thursday as the amateur field was narrowed to 16 players for the two 18-hole rounds today.

Others advancing, despite rain and soggy grounds, were defending champ Jimmy Jackson of St. Louis, 1975 winner Bruce Hollowell of Springfield and the 1973 titlist, Buddy Godwin of Poplar Bluff.

Barnes, a 39-year-old investment broker, said that his play has improved greatly since his wife began playing golf on weekends. Now she shoots in the mid-80s.

"Before all this, I just stood up and hit it," he said. "I didn't know what I was doing.

"The last three years I started taking lessons from Stan (Thirsk, a Kansas City pro). I still don't know all that I'm doing, but since all this happened the best golf I have played has been in the last years."

Jackson eliminated Don Dupske, also of St. Louis, 2-up, while Holloway defeated George White of Springfield, 3 and 2, and Godwin beat Dave Cochran Sr. of Claycrest, 4 and 3.

The golfers were originally scheduled to play two 18-hole rounds, cutting the field to eight. But those plans were shelved after rain fell throughout the first round, eventually resulting in a 1½-hour delay.

A prevailing mist made it difficult to judge the par 72 course, and the field's stronger golfers saw their drives neutralized by the rain-laden ground.

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

Southeast Missouri Karate fighters are rapidly establishing a reputation for their accomplishments in the various tournaments in this region. during a four- week period in May and June, area fighters were involved in four major fighting tournaments: the St. Louis Championships, the Keishenkan Tournament in Jonesboro, Ark., the "Memphis in May" Tournament in Memphis and the Bowling Green, Ky., Tournament.

Woodrow Speed of Sikeston, a former Missouri state champion and a finalist in the 1975 National Championships, won $100 in cash after earning the title of Grand Champion and claiming the heavyweight Black Belt championship in the St. Louis Tournament.

Carlton Bobo finished second in the heavyweight Yellow Belt division and Joe Green finished first among the lightweight White Belt fighters.

Area fighters claimed six trophies, including three firsts, in the Kieshenkan Tournament at Jonesboro. Clifton Hamm finished on top of the heap in the Brown Belt division. Larry Robinson, a high school freshman, finished first in the lightweight Green Belt division.

The "Memphis in May" Tournament was sponsored by Bill Wallace, the World Middleweight Champion. Three Southeast Missouri fighters brought trophies home from the Memphis tourney, including the third consecutive first place finish for Joe Green. Green topped the field in the lightweight Yellow Belt division.

Carlton Bobo, like Larry Robinson a freshman in high school fighting adults, finished second in the heavyweight Yellow Belt competition. Woodrow Speed was a fourth-place finisher in the heavyweight Black Belt fighting.

The wins gave Semo fighters 15 trophies in a four-week time period.

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene opens with the hero breaking into a grin after watching a rerun of his winning ride in what was his first race after being sidelined a month because of injuries suffered in a spill.

"Steve Cauthen is back."

Cameras click and grind. Writers write.

But it wasn't a screen play. It was just another true life adventure in the story of Steve Cauthen, a kid from Kentucky who has shocked big time thoroughbred racing.

"That a way Stevie," roared a bettor as Cauthen rode Little Miracle into the winner's circle after the second race Thursday at Belmont Park. "We missed ya."

And they were glad to see him, cailbirds and box-seat patrons alike, cheering and applauding the 17-year old from the time he appeared in the paddock until he disappeared in the tunnel leading to the jockey's room after riding his 277th winner of the year, tops in the nation.

"I enjoyed my rest when it happened," Cauthen said a couple of hours before returning in describing how he felt for about two weeks after suffering a broken wrist and a rib and cuts of the face and hands when Bay Streak fell during a race at Belmont.

"... then I got better, and when you get better, you want to race."

Cauthen returned to New York last Monday and exercised horses for the next three days in preparing for what turned out to be a hero's welcome.

"Hey Steve, Hey Steve," fans shouted as Cauthen appeared in the saddling area, where he was quickly surrounded by photographers and television camermen.

May expand Faurot Field

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A proposal to expand Faurot Field and raise ticket prices by 50 cents went before the University of Missouri Board of Curators today.

The plan to add as many as 10,530 seats to the football stadium has been recommended by the board's physical facilities and finance boards. The 50-cent surcharge would be use to pay back the loan for the construction.

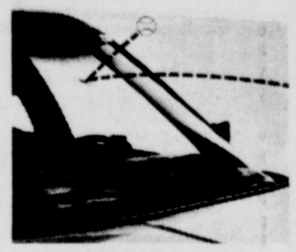

If the expansion is approved by the full board, bids will be sought after July 1.

In action Thursday, the board's finance committee adopted a new policy concerning the investment of about $50 million in university funds.

The money can now be invested in certificates of deposit in addition to investment by U.S. Treasury bills.

The change could bring in up to $350,000 more in additional investment dividends.

The committee stipulated the investment will generally be made in Missouri banks, but investors were told to seek the best deals, which would include out-of-state banks.

S. H. Harper is spending this week in Noxall, where he has recently purchased a grocery store. His father will have charge of the business there.

C. L. Smith of Paragould, Ark., is the new man in charge of the shoe department at the Buckner-Ragsdale store. He comes highly recommended as a shoe man. He is accompanied by his wife and mother and they are occupying the former Greer residence at Kingshighway and Tanner street.

G. W. Blodgett has begun the erection of a residence on two lots which he recently bought from Nora Manley, located just west of Dr. W. E. Derris' new home on William street. The new residence will contain six rooms, and will be a modern all-stucco bungalow, with basement and furnace. G. W. Cagle is building the new home for Mr. Blodgett.

The Sikeston branch of the Leslie Lumber and Supply Co., will build several new sheds and additions to the yard in the immediate future. They intend to redecorate the interior of the office, installing new windows and shelves. The company is located on East Malone avenue.

Matthews-- Mrs. Aubrey Lurmit and children of New Madrid are visiting with Mrs. Lurmit's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Deane.

The Scott County Motor Co., a Ford-Groves Shop, moved this week to their new home in the Moore building on Malone avenue. Since the fire last winter, which destroyed the Stubbs Motor Co., building, the Ford agency has been temporarily located in the new Matthews building. The mechanical and service department is under the management of Earl Johnson.

The Sikeston Coca Cola Co., has recently built an addition in the form of a second story to their plant on Front street. The new addition will be used as a laboratory and syrup mixing room.

Efficient Bug

The average lightbulb doesn't hold a candle to the firefly. A good bulb converts only about 10 percent of its energy into light, wasting the rest as heat. A firefly operates its lamp without heat at better than 95 per cent efficiency.

EPA preparing to enforce waterway law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is preparing to move against hundreds of industries and municipalities that will likely fail to meet a July 1 deadline for cleaning up waterways.

At the same time, however, the EPA declared Tuesday that "significant progress" has been made in a five-year water pollution abatement program that began in 1972.

But the agency said 300 industries and 100 municipal governments face enforcement actions such as lawsuits if they don't meet the deadline.

Thomas C. Jorling, designated but not yet sworn in as assistant administrator for water and hazardous materials, said the EPA could not name those industries and municipalities believed unable to meet water quality standards. Such predictions might weaken EPA's bargaining position with some polluters and might jeopardize potential legal actions, he said.

Jorling noted that under the 1972 law industries were required to apply the "best practicable" techniques to reduce discharges of pollution into the nation's waterways by July 1, 1977.

Municipalities were required to apply "secondary treatment" — essentially filtering and disinfection — to sewage discharges, or more stringent treatment measures where necessary to protect water quality.

Jorling said the vast majority of some 4,000 major industrial polluters have complied with water cleanup regulations, and that only about 300 face enforcement actions.

He said the EPA's enforcement drive could result in the imposition of scientific clean-up schedules or lawsuits claiming penalties up to $10,000 per day, which could result in multi-million-dollar fines in some cases.

Jorling said EPA regional offices have been instructed to set up priorities for taking enforcement actions, stressing first the largest polluters who could be trying harder, and taking it easy on polluters forced to miss the deadline through no fault of their own.

The agency listed a dozen industrial categories with the largest percentage of plants likely to be in violation of the deadline.

Blast furnaces showed the worst clean-up record, with 46 per cent expected to violate water clean-up requirements after July 1, Jorling said.

Electric power plants and pulp mills were each forecast to have a 34 per cent violation rate after the deadline.

In the primary metals industries, 21 per cent were expected to miss the deadline.

SALMON STOCKING

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor, Ont., has been stocked with chinook salmon and steelhead and brown trout. According to Sports Afield magazine, the restocking is an apparent result of a successful cleanup of the river.

What's the law?

Bky JACK STRAUSS, LL.B

When Frank decided to get married, he was determined that his marriage wasn't going to be like a lottery where you tear up the ticket if you lose. To insure the permancney of his relationship, he had his bride-to-be sign a contract in which she agreed that she would never divorce him.

It didn't take too long, however, before Frank's bride concluded that her marriage, although not intended to be a trial, was a tribulation. While Frank was a rich man, he was a very poor husband and, in desperation, she started an action to divorce him.

"I won't permit it," insisted Frank in court. "A deal is a deal. She signed a contract that she would never divorce me, therefore, she can't do it."

"What contract?," questioned Frank's bride. "If he means that agreement I signed, it's not worth a hill of beans. You can't contract as to the future relationship of a husband and wife. If a person could predict the course of a marriage, he could predict the course of the world--and control it. Consequently, I'm not bound by that agreement."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Frank's desperate wife to divorce him?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes. The judge held that divorces are governed strictly and wholly by law. And, concluded the judge, given cause under the law that would entitle a wife to a divorce, she is entitled to same regardless of any contract she may have signed to the contrary.

Handicapped children to at attend summer camp

JEFFERSON CITY — Forty-four handicapped children between eight and 14 years of age will be given the opportunity to attend a five-day summer camp through the efforts and contributions of the Missouri National Guard.

The Guard, in cooperation with the division of mental retardation-developmental disabilities, will sponsor five days of camping for these children, July 4-8, at Camp Wonderland, Rocky Mount.

Four children from each of the Division's 11 Regional centers for the developmentally disabled will attend the camp. These children will be selected by the staff of each of the centers. In addition to this praticular Camp, the Guard is providing 15 camperships for children who may attend camps on dates of their choice throughout the summer months. The Camp Programs are made possible through voluntary contributions of more than 11,000 Missouri Guardmembers from throughout the State.

Robert Kyle, director of the Rolla Regional Center, is serving as division coordinator of the program. CPT Richard Brown, Missouri Guard equal employment officer, is corrdinating the Guard's efforts. The division of mental retardation- developmental disabilities will provide transportation to and from the camp for the children and a major portion of the camp staff. The Guard is providing funding, cooks and activity directors, for swimming, fishing and various arts and crafts.

The camp will begin on July 4 with a large night fireworks display and end on July 8 with Brig. Gen. Robert E. Buechler, the adjutant general, presenting awards to the children for their various accomplishments made during the encampment.

Wonderland Camp, now in its seventh season, is completely accessible to the handicapped. It includes cabins, shelter houses, boating and swimming areas, nature trails and a picnic area. Operated by Wonderland Camp Foundation, it was constructed through the leadership and financial support of the Missuri Jaycees. Charles T. Miller of Columbia, who spearheaded the development, is the foundation's president.

The Missouri National Guard has always participated in various community assistance projects and, according to guard officials, it is hoped that projects such as this will foster better guard-community relations. "This is a most worthwhile program and we are pleased to have the opportunity to participate," said General Buechler.

Caseworker to be in north Scott County

SCOTT CITY— The Scott County Family Services office has announced that a food stamp caseworker will be in Scott City at the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation office, 203 Emma St., July 13, from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and in Chaffee at the Housing Authority 800 S. Main, St., July 13, from 1:30 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Only those persons living in Scott County and wishing to apply for or to be recertified for Food Stamps, who do not receive Aid to Dependent Children or General Relief should come to these centers. Those persons who have been receiving food stamps should bring their identification (pink) card with them, along with receipts for housing, utilities, and medical expenses.

Jackie Gleason has surgery for droopy eyelids

MIAMI (AP) — Jackie Gleason's doctor says the rotund comedian has had his face lifted because his "eyelids drooped so he couldn't read the scripts."

"The operations weren't cosmetic; they were more reconstructive," said Dr. Bernard Halperin. "He needed the operation for his career."

He said Gleason underwent two plastic surgery operations over a 4½-hour period Tuesday at Jackson Memorial Hospital. The comedian was said to be in good condition, but full recuperation could take months.

Woman happy with solar heating savings

CROSS TIMBERS (AP)— Before Mrs. Martha Moore received her new solar heating system, she burned 345 gallons of propane in the month of January alone and could not get the temperature in her living room above 60.

Since the West Central Missouri Rural Development Corporation installed a $90 solar heating unit in early February, she has used only about 100 gallons of propane and the temperature in her living room for the rest of the winter was 72. Of course, January was the coldest month most Missourians can remember, but Mrs. Moore is happy with her energy savings.

The unit was one of several installed by the agency. A piece of tin painted black is placed under a glass plate on the south side of the house and air is circulated over the tin.

Frank Podkul, who works for the federal volunteer agency, ACTION, said there are many expensive solar heating systems on the market, but inexpensive models can provide substantial heating bill savings for low-income families.

He said such a system can save a family 30 per cent on their heating bills.

Rogers wedding plans announced

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pop-country singer Kenny Rogers and Mary Ann Gordon of the "Hee Haw" TV show plan to be married.

NEW PRESIDENT

Ichord refuses to pay Maryland income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Missouri congressman says his Maryland home has been burglarized three times, the state government is "corrupt to the core" and he'll go to the highest court to keep from paying any income taxes there.

Even if living in Maryland was all it should be, Rep. Richard Ichord says he won't fork over state income tax money because he earns his $57,500 salary in the District of Columbia, not Maryland.

But state tax collectors are threatening court action unless Ichord agrees to pay up.

In an exchange of written barbs with the Maryland comptroller's office, Ichord has acknowledged that he has not filed tax return statements to Annapolis for the years 1972 through 1975.

"I have not earned one dime in Maryland," he blustered. "And as a matter of principle, I will not pay one dime of taxes in Maryland untilthe highest court decides that I must pay such taxes if any are owing in excess of my Missouri income taxes."

Asked by a reporter how much he owes the state of Maryland, the Missouri Democrat growled: "That is none of your business. You don't have a right to ask."

But he did say he pays "considerable income tax" to Missouri. He declined to give an exact figure.

Ichord, a former business law and accounting professor at the University of Missouri, says he pays real estate tax on the house he has owned for 10 years in Prince Georges County, Md.

But he complained to Maryland officials that his real estate taxes are "approximately three times as high as Missouri," and that he gets very little governmental services in return.

To wit, Ichord noted, his house has been burglarized three times.

Ichord's congressional colleagues from Maryland don't see why Ichord doesn't pay up and they have been known to suggest it. But Ichord snapped at one such Maryland congressman:

"I found out that ... Maryland government is corrupt to the core and that many businessmen not only have to have one black bag, but have to carry actually as many as two black bags in order to do business.

"Witness the past conduct of your former Gov. (Spiro T.) Agnew and the present trial of your present Gov. (Marvin) Mandel. I have never known such corruption to exist in any state in the union. I am sure it still exists."

Agnew resigned as vice president after pleading no contest to income tax charges. Mandel is being tried on corruption charges.

Ichord's argument with Maryland could be shelved by legislation expected to go to the White House soon. It would exempt House and Senate members from paying income taxes in Maryland or Virginia.

They would still have to pay income taxes in their home states.

The District of Columbia does not tax the income of persons who work in the district but live elsewhere.

George F. Smith of Maryland's comptroller's office says he is sticking to current law. That means, he says, members of Congress who live in Maryland for more than six months of the taxable year must be treated as any other individual taxpayer.

But, counters Ichord: "I do not sleep in Maryland more than six months out of the year."

Hart attended the wedding with amateur photographer Lewis Lindsey, who at the time was a clerk and photographer at the Granite State Reformatory, officials said.

Hart was serving three concurrent 10-year sentences for rape and kidnaping.

Lindsey, now retired in Santa Ana, Calif., said Hart went to the wedding with him and later developed the negatives and prints in the prison darkroom.

Lindsey said Hart attended the wedding with him as a trusty assigned to carry the photography equipment. He said he does not remember Hart talking to any guests at the wedding.

"He wasn't outgoing. He would sit around on the side and sometimes take my pictures for me," he said

Lindsey said Hart had access to the negatives but he did not know if the convict kept copies after printing them for the bride.

Hart was released from prison in 1969, the year after the photos were taken.

Hart was paroled in March 1969, but within three months was again arrested for trying to break into the Tulsa home of a woman detective. He was charged and convicted of a total of four first-degree burglaries. He was sent to the state prison at McAlester, then returned to Mayes County in April 1973 to be a witness. He escaped from the jail shortly afterward.

Lightning hits house

Lightning struck a utility pole and set fire to a fuse box in the L. C. McConnell home, just off Brown Spur Road south of Highway 60, during the storm Thursday night, according to the fire division of the Public Safety Department.

The lightning hit about 5:54 p.m. and fire damage was confined to the fuse box.

Construction walkout continues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Major construction projects in eastern Missouri remain shut down today, after members of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 513, Hoisting Engineers, voted overwhelmingly to continue their strike.

A spokesman for the union said members Thursday night rejected an offer by the Associated General Contractors of Missouri that was virtually the same as one turned down June 14th.

Since May 1 the strike has shut down major highway projects thcoughout eastern Missouri and the $152 million Clarence Cannon Dam near Hannibal. About 4,500 workers have been affected by the walkout.

Details of the latest offer were not revealed. Contractors have been seeking concessions in work rules in an effort to make them more competitive with nonunion contractors. No new talks have been scheduled.

Clerk says districts fairly evenly divided

BLOOMFIELD – Stoddard County's two county court districts are "pretty well divided insofar as population is concerned," in light of a new Missouri Supreme Court ruling requiring such an equal division, County Clerk Marvin Capps said today.

A recent state high court ruling said that any division of a county into county court districts that did not make them as equal as possible insofar as population is concerned is unconstitutional.

The case had been brought before the Supreme court by a "township- divided county" such as Stoddard County is, and the county that was a part of the legal action had claimed that such a division was impossible due to township lines.

Capps, however, explained that the Stoddard County court met that requirement as nearly as possible by changing the boundary lines of the two county court districts.

At present, he pointed out, the First District, represented by Judge Jack Ward, includes the townships of Castor, Duck Creek, Picke , New Lisbon and Richland. The Second District, represented by Judge Harold (Pete) Snider, is composed of only Liberty and Elk townships. Each has a population of about 12,500, Capps said. The actual population of Snider's Second Distri ct, according to the last census, included 1,389 in Elk Township and 10,886 in Liberty Township, Capps pointed out.

"We believe this is nearly equal representation," Capps declared.

'Flying saucers' first reported 30 years ago

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — There were nine of them, shiny, pulsating objects flying over the Cascade Mountains as fast as 1,700 miles per hour. Kenneth Arnold was the first person to report seeing "flying saucers" — 30 years ago today.

The publicity-shy Arnold, now 62, makes a rare public appearance tonight to give the keynote address to a three-day international conference on unidentified flying objects, UFOs, in Chicago.

Arnold, a Boise, Idaho, businessman, was flying his two-seater plane from Chehalis to Yakima on June 24, 1947, when he saw the objects over Mt. Rainier, moving in a strange weaving motion.

"They seemed to be alive in the center, to have the ability to change their density. I know that sounds strange," said Arnold.

"No, I have never claimed to have seen any little men in them. Others have, not me. I didn't want to exploit anyone, and I didn't want to be exploited."

Soon after Arnold's report, UFOs became a craze. The flying saucer term was coined. Everybody seemed to be seeing them. Arnold says he has seen UFOs six times since the first sighting.

To celebrate the anniversary, the New Age Foundation, a UFO group in the Northwest, plans lectures, a salmon bake and a skywatch near the 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier.

Recent Gallup polls show 51 per cent of Americans believe in UFOs. A 1973 Gallup survey found 15 million Americans who claimed to have seen them.

The Air Force, in its Project Blue Book — which investigated thousands of UFO sightings — concluded that some UFO reports were hard to explain, although no national security threat was found.

His description has remained constant. The craft flew erratically, "like speedboats on rough water," cruising both flat and sideways. They were circular, pulsated like fireflies in the center and traveled at great speeds.

BOOK REVIEW

In "Crossing The Border," Joyce Carol Oates once more explores the divisions within and between people

Sometimes the borders are physical in this collection of 15 short stories: a young American couple's decision to take a job in Canada, a hassle at a customs checkpoint, a rising river.

Other times, and often simultaneously, the borders are thrown up within her characters: they sort through eccentricity, madness or hysteria, present themselves in tidy fashion and try to convince us that nonsensible things are sensible.

Seven of the stories are about Evan and Renee Maynard, who leave Florida for Evan's new job in Ontario. As the Maynards progress through their new lives, one story at a time, their chronicle stops for other characters in other stories. Yet the feeling is not so much a collection of unrelated stories as chapters of the same novel

Truth and illusion become tangled, and all the while there's a scream choking to escape.

Joyce Carol Oates can tell so much about her characters in so few words — more than you really want to know, sometimes — but in such an overwhelming fashion that one is exhausted. Depressing, but also impressing.

Gospel singing cast announced

The cast of singers has been announced for the old-time gospel singing scheduled at 7 p.m. Saturday at Sikeston Junior High School, located south of the high school field house on Twitty Drive.

Sponsored by the Heritage House Senior Citizens Nutrition Program, the event will feature three groups from Blytheville, Ark., and a wide variety of local area singers.

The Blytheville groups on the program will be the Young Sisters, Hallelujah Chorus and The Revelations.

Local singers featured will include Arnold Joe Myrick, Tolbert Sisters, Larry Davis, Pete Chartrau, Scott Chartrau, Mona Dement, Gene Henzi, Genie Livingston, Campbell Qurrtet, Fred and Mary Lou Lawrence and Burl Vines.

No admission fee will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken. The proceeds will be used for the new kitchen at the Heritage House.

Methodist Vacation Church School ends

A Methodist Vacation Church School, jointly sponosred by three local United Methodist Churches, closed this morning at First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North. The other participating churches included Wesley United Methodist, 600 Pine St., and Smith Chapel United Methodist, 200 Young St.

The closing program at 11:15 a.m. featured singing by children's choral groups and talks by Janice Maithews and the Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist. After the program, a balloon-arama was held on the outside courtyard.

Staff membvers, in addition to Mrs. Matthews, the program coordinator, and Dr. Fulbright, included: Carolyn Walker, youth director, and Mary Wilkison, children's director.

Richard Shakarian to speak here Sunday

Richard Shakarian, son of the founder of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, will speak at a special rally at 6 p.m. Sunday in First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, according to the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor.

The name of Richard's father, Demos Shakarian, is known around the world as the founder and president of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship. Richard also is known in many lands, where he has traveled as an emissary for Evangelist Oral Roberts.

The Rev. Mr. Wooten said Sunday's rally will mark the first time any of the Shakaralans has spoken in Sikeston. Local talent will provide special music prior to the ministry of Shakarian, with Bernice Wooten as organist and Jane Whitten as pianist.

Homecoming, dedication services set Sunday

Homecoming and dedication services for the new auditorium will be held Sunday at Temple of Faith General Baptist Church, 309 Smith St.

The morning worship service will begin at 10:15 a.m., and will be followed by the dedication service at 11 a.m. The auditorium was completed late last year.

Lunch will be served in the educational building during the noon hour.

In the afternoon, a gospel singing program from 2 to 4 p.m. will feature the Wallace Family from Granite City, Ill., Beardsley Family of St. Louis and the old Big Ridge Quratet, the Thoman Trio and other local singers.

Dexter church to host revival series next week

DEXTER— Revival services will begin Sunday morning and continue each evening at 7:30 through Wednesday at New Life Cathedral Church, located north of Dexter Memorial Hospital one-fourth mile off Highway 60.

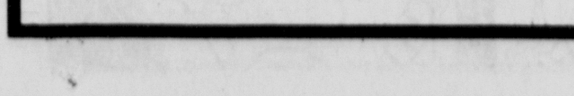

The evangelist will be the Rev. Charles Cowan of Adairville, Ky., who has spoken at Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International meetings in this area.

Tubbs family to sing

The Hugh Tubbs Family will sing at the Apostolic Pentecostal Church, 301 William St., the Rev. Charles Warren, pastor, has announced.

The Tubbs Family has traveled throughout the United States for the past five years presenting gospel singing concerts in auditoriums, churches, civic centers, etc.

No admission will be charged, and the event is open to the public.

Dr. Graham accepted a crusade invitation last October from Memphis clergymen, civic leaders and businessmen, but no date was set.

Riggs said offices for the crusade opened last month in Holiday City in Memphis, headquarters of Holiday Inns, Inc. He said the organizing team is "here a little bit ahead of schedule" and usually takes six to eight months to put the effort together.

The evangelist's internationally famous crusades are preceded by extensive organizational preparation that involves as many as 40,000 persons, Riggs said. The crusade itself will feature a 7,000 voice choir and require the services of about 1,000 ushers. It is expected to be televised worldwide.

In addition, said Riggs, women's prayer groups will be started in 5,000 homes within a 50- to 75-mile radius of Memphis. The groups usually average eight women each and will be connected to a daily radio program.

Thoughts

"If you are pure and upright, surely then he will rouse himself for you and reward you with a rightful habitation. And though your beginning was small, your latter days will be very great." — Job 8:6, 7.

Fear not that thy life shall come to an end, but rather fear that it shall never have a beginning. — John Henry Cardinal Newman.

Vacation school program closes

A Vacation School of Religion for children 4 years old through eighth grade age closed today at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, 106 N. Stoddard St. The five-day event opened Monday and was conducted from 9 to 11 o'clock each morning.

Participating in the program with the approximately 100 youngsters who attended each day were Sisters Patricia, Carlene and Augusta, as well as adult and teen-agers from the parish who served as teachers, assistants and refreshment and playground supervisors.

The theme of the school was "Being called to and growing as a member of God's family."

Each day time was devoted to presentation of doctrine, arts and crafts and preparation for celebration of the liturgy. All sessions were closed with the celebration of the Eucharistic liturgy.

Dexter church to install new pastor

DEXTER— The Rev. Don Loudenback will be installed here Sunday at 3 p.m. as pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, Dexter, and Grace Lutheran Church a Malden.

He and his wife are parents of two children, Donald and Jennifer. They plan to live in Dexter.

The Rev. Mr. Loudenback was born in Clinton, Okla.; graduated from Lawton High School in Lawton, Okla., in 1953 and began his college training at Cameron State College. After completing two years at Cameron, the moved to Long Beach, Calif., where he was employed by Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., as a switchman.

During this time he enrolled at Long Beach State University, where he continued to wrok toward a baccalaureate degree, with a major in music and a minor in biology. While attending the university he met and married Linda Craft of Whittier, Calif.

After graduation from college they moved to Oklahoma, where Don taught vocal and instrumental music in the public schools of Grandfield and Hollis.

After six years of teaching, he entered Concordia Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ill., in June 1973, with a view to entering the ministry of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. He spent his vicarage (supervised pastoral training) at Zion Luthern Church in Bismarck, N.D. and graduated last month from Concordia Seminary in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Wyatt church to host annual homecoming

WYATT — The Wyatt Pentecostal Holiness Church will observe its annual Homecoming Day Sunday with all-day services featuring an afternoon gospel singing program, the Rev. Lynn Ice, pastor, has announced.

The day will begin with Sunday School at 10 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11 o'clock, lunch in the church dining hall at noon and the singing service at 2 p.m., featuring the Mount Calvary Gospel Singers from Dyess, Ark.

The Welland Canal between Lakes Ontario and Erie has eight locks to detour the 326-foot drop of Niagara Falls and the rapids of the Niagara River.

Weekly jail service planned

A weekly religious service in the Scott County jail at Benton has been arranged through the cooperative efforts of the Sikeston Ministerial Alliance and Sheriff W. F. "Bill" Ferrell, according to an announcemennt released by the Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church and an officer of the alliance. All ministers in the county may participate in the services.

The service will be held once a week on Monday evenings at 7 o'clock. It will last 30 minutes, and no more than two persons -- men only -- will be admitted to lead the service.

The prisoners who attend the service will do so voluntarily. If any of the prisoners wishes personal counseling after the service, arrangements for counseling sessions can be made through Sheriff Ferrell.

The services may take various forms, including singing, scripture reading, prayer, short inspirational message, discussion and-or question and answer session, etc.

A schedule of persons to lead the services will be maintained by the Rev. M. Walker, who says any minister in the county may participate in the services, either alone or with another minister or layman from his congregation.

To request inclusion on the schedule, ministers may write the Rev. Paul D. Walker, P. O. Box 928, Sikeston, Mo. 63801, or phone his office, 471-3613, mornings only.

DIEHLSTADT— The Rev. Harvey Puckett of Ferguson will show films of the Holy Land at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Diehlstadt General Baptist Church.

The prayer

"In thee, O Lord, do I seek refuge; let me never be put to shame; in thy righteousness deliver me!" (Psalm 31:1 RSV)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, give us sufficient faith to trust Your protection. We pray that You will help those who are weak. We pray in the name of Your Son, who showed us Your deep love. Amen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 5. John the Baptist

John the Baptist began preaching out in the Judean wilderness. He constantly urged the people to turn from their sins. Of course, his ministry had been prophesied by the great prophet Isaiah. John wore coarse clothing made from camel's hair and rough leather; he subsisted chiefly on locusts and wild honey.

"Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, And were baptized of him in Jordan confessing their sins." (Matthew 3:5-6)

"I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost..." (Matthew 3:11)

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1948, the Communists began a blockade of the city of Berlin, halting Allied land traffic between the isolated city and West Germany.

On this date:

In 1497, the first recorded discovery of the mainland of North America occurred as the explorer John Cabot sighted land between Halifax and southern Labrador.

In 1793, the first republican constitution in France was adopted.

In 1940, in World War II, the French government of Marshal Petain signed an armistice with Italy.

Five years ago: A young hijacker who commandeered a jetliner bailed out over Indiana with $500,000 in ransom money. He was never heard from again.

One year ago: The Supreme Court, in what was considered a landmark ruling, struck down laws that extended Federal minimum wage and maximum hour provisions to 3½ million state employes.

Thought for today: There is no substitute for character and there is no rule about where you find it. — Attorney Louis Nizer.

One usually does not know the friends that he has until he needs them.

We wish to sincerely thank all of our friends for your kindness and generosity, for your comforting words, the beautiful flowers and food.

A special thank you to Bro. Cecil Adams, Bro. Larry Rice, Mel and Vicki Redman, the pallbearers and O'Guinn Funeral Home. We needed you, you were there and we thank you.

BE READY FOR RETIREMENT
You don't need to be told that you can't get along on Social Security or other pension payments alone when the time comes for you to retire. The thing to do now is to prepare for the future. A comfortable home in the country, all paid for, ready for yourself and family, will make your income go around. A nice garden, a few chickens, a cow, and perhaps a pig or two make your dollars go farther. They add zest to life and increase your feeling of security.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOMEOWNERS
HOW MUCH IS YOUR HOME WORTH?

You probably remember very well what you paid for it. That's the first thing most folks think of ... what it COST THEM.

But, unless you bought it only recently, the purchase price is only one indication of its true worth today ... and not a very good one, at that.

Conditions change. Neighborhoods improve - or deteriorate. Alterations and improvements in the house affect its value. Dozens of considerations enter into an intelligent appraisal, making this almost a science in itself.

Appraising is a specialty of ours. If you would like to know what your home is REALLY worth today, pick up your phone and call us.

SHARP AND COZY describes this two bedroom house in the town of Blodgett. Large 100 x 175 lot with lots of shade. One car garage and a partial basement. Priced at only $13,200.

"So I said to my wife, with electricity so expensive, we can't afford to run both the air conditioner and the milking machine!

PONDER THIS....Don't talk about what you have done or what you are going to do...DO IT and let it speak for itself.

NEW LISTINGS

This nice 30 x 60 building may be just what you need. It has an office area with air conditioning and the rest could be used for a garage, workshop, warehouse, cabinet shop, or any commercial use. LOW PRICE of only $11,900.

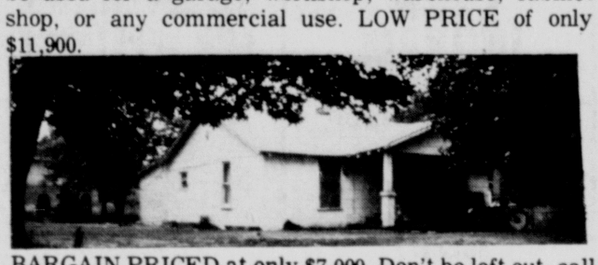

QUIT HOUSING AROUND... If you're looking for a very clean 3 bedroom house, STOP right here. New carpet in the living room and one bedroom and beautiful hardwood floors in the other two. A very nice shaded lot on Circle Drive and a price of only $26,000.

WORDS WON'T DO IT ... $37,500... Four bedrooms ... You'll have to see this home yourself to believe and appreciate all the value that goes with it. This tri-level has the features to compliment a life-style of gracious living. The spacious living room has a wood burning fireplace. Upstairs has 3 bedrooms and a bath while the lower level has the kitchen, dining, utility, bath, and one bedroom. Outside we have a 24 x 24 recreation building with a nice BarB Q grill. Owner has been painting and fixing up so call us for a first hand inspection.

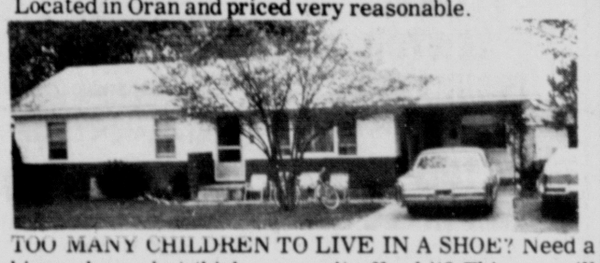

OUT OF THE ORDINARY... This exceptional, four bedroom home is close to town and is ideal for family living. Everything is spacious with large living and dining area. The kids will love the upstairs bedrooms and the beautiful yard will be enjoyed by the whole family. Located in Oran and priced very reasonable.

Careful shoppers can save 10-15 per cent on food bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1953, an undergraduate at the University of Pittsburgh, Hans Biesdorf, roamed local supermarkets seeking to determine the savings he might obtain by shopping in a businesslike way.

His aim, as he recalls it, was to apply the same caution, the same discernment in buying food as a professional purchaser for U.S. Steel might use in buying products for that concern.

That was before the consumer movement when, more so than today, it was a case of the naive, amateur buyer against the sophisticated, professional seller. But according to the term paper he wrote, big savings could be obtained.

Today, Hans Biesdorf, professor and economist, still roams the aisles. He believes that someone with no extraordinary expertise to begin with can cut a family food bill by 10 to 15 per cent, saving thousands of dollars in a lifetime.

Really? "Of course, no problem." His reply was peremptory, its authority founded in the facts. Since coming from West Germany in 1950 he has recorded, examined and examined again the price of all his purchases.

"Everything we (he and his wife) ever bought, it went into my records," he said. "If you don't keep records you cannot learn."

Millions have learned from Biesdorf and his associates presently or once at Cornell University. He has appeared on or written scores of radio and television shows. He supplied much fodder for the consumer movement.

In 1968 he and his associates wrote "Be A Better Shopper — Buying in Supermarkets," a home study kit. Some 43,000 orders were received, and a related slide program has been used in 200 high schools here and abroad.

Now a new edition of the kit and slide program has been completed to include developments since then, such as unit pricing, raincheck policy, nutrition labels and the Universal Product Code.

(For the kit, checks for $2.50, payable to Cornell University, should be sent to Better Shopper, Box 191, Dept. N-1, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.)
